AGED JUNK DEALER HURT IN COLLISION

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Nathan Morris, an aged junk dealer, was thrown from his wagon in a collision with a Haight street car at the intersection of Masonic avenue at 10 o'clock this morning. He received bruises from the fall to the pavement and was treated at the Park Emergency Hospital. Later he was taken to his home, 1015 Lincoln way.

WHY IVORY IS USED. Ivory is used for piano keys, not only on account of its rich appearance, but because it is more pleasant to the touch, there being very slight friction between the human finger and ivory. In addition, ivory retains a remarkable evenness of temperature in all seasons; it does not become so cold in the winter as to be uncomfortable, yet it is always cool, even in the warmest weather. That is why only the best ivory is used on the Pianos and Player-Pianos included in the Kohler & Chase Club.

ROBBERS SLAY VICTIM AND FLEE WITH $5000 Corpse Is Supposed to Have Been Carried From Room Where Body Was Looted of Jewelry that the wounds had been caused at least twenty-four hours before the finding of the body.

CRIME CAREFULLY PLANNED. When a reporter interviewed B. T. Brilliant, Goodman's employer, and learned the facts surrounding Goodman's last known movements, it became evident that the crime had been carefully planned and perpetrated. Goodman was last seen alive at 5 o'clock on Saturday, when he called at the offices of the jewelry company. He stated that he had several good prospects for sales down in the wholesale district along Washington street, and he left, as it was becoming dark, to go to that neighborhood. He had on his person some $5000 in jewelry, diamonds and other precious stones and a $700 diamond ring, his own property, on his finger. His failure to appear yesterday and make a report on his sales caused his employer to wonder. The murder could not have been done by one man and the body disposed of as it was, so it is the theory of the police that there were at least two robbers concerned. They undoubtedly followed Goodman to the wholesale district, which is especially deserted on Saturday night, and either struck him on the head as he passed by some dark place or beguiled him to a room where the assault was made. They may not have intended to strike so hard, but two blows on the right side of the head crushed the skull. Death was probably not instantaneous, but the culprits may have taken their victim to a room, robbed him at leisure and then, during the darkness of the early morning, disposed of the body, covering it over with the refuse and making their escape.

CARRIED MUCH JEWELRY. Brilliant, when interviewed this morning, remarked on the fact that Goodman always carried such a large quantity of goods. "That is the only objection I had to him," said the jewelry man. "He was careless about not locking up his goods in the safe at night. He had never had any trouble and always thought it was safe to carry his samples around with him. On Saturday night he left me at 5 o'clock saying he had some prospects down in the wholesale quarter, ployer to worry, and a report of his disappearance was to have been made to the police this morning."

It seems evident that the two or more robbers in the daring crime must have been watching Goodman and I suppose that that was the time he was robbed. He has been in the employ of the firm for about three years and was one of the best salesmen we ever had. He was 24 years old, has a wife and one child about 4 years of age. He was not being living with his wife, I believe. "Goodman's family resides in Stockton, where his father is engaged in the jewelry business in that city. His wife resides here on Washington street and he has been living at the King Edward apartments on Turk street."

STRUCK FROM BEHIND. It seems evident from the investigation so far made that the young man did not have a chance for his life. The wounds on his head appear to have been struck from behind and it may have been that the robbers closed in upon him from the rear and beat him into insensibility before taking him to some previously selected place and robbing him.

The autopsy performed by Dr. Magnus showed that Goodman had died from a fractured skull and had been beaten by a hammer or the market hatchet. The ridges on the head of a hammer or hatchet would naturally make an imprint in the flesh of a person struck and these marks and perforations were found in several places on the head of the dead man.

Parents Seek Son, Not Knowing of Murder

STOCKTON, Nov. 21.—Besides his parents, Goodman leaves two sisters and a brother here, a sister in San Francisco and his wife and child. Mr. and Mrs. L. Goodman, the dead man's parents, left for San Francisco this morning in the hope of locating their son, who had been missing since Saturday night. At the time of his departure they did not know that he had been murdered.

berg and Erickson, arrived here from Tien-Tsin. They said a telegram had been received from Shan Fu before their departure from southern Shen Si, announcing the order of Miss Beckingsdale, a school mistress belonging to the English Baptist mission, and five foreign children.

Many Chinese girls in Miss Beckingsdale's school, who were mistaken for Manchus because of their big feet, were also reported to have been murdered. A German, Philip Mannes, who was in the Chinese postal service, was among others killed. Sandberg and Erickson say a magistrate in their own town offered them $400 each to leave the province. Shen Si is probably the most anti-foreign province in China proper, not having received a lesson at the hands of the foreign troops in 1900. Highwaymen in Honan attacked and robbed a party of fugitive missionaries, injuring one of them. Nowhere else apparently have foreigners been attacked, the rebels everywhere giving them protection, but it is feared that lawlessness will increase. The Peking government is powerless beyond Honan and Chi Li.

IN DANGER ZONE. Among other members of the Scandinavian Alliance mission at Shan Fu are Rev. C. J. Anderson and wife, Rev. O. Engstrom and wife, E. Paulson, C. J. Jensen and wife, Miss D. Lindvall and Miss C. Anderson. The Rev. V. L. Bordlund and wife and Mrs. C. H. Henniksen also are members of the mission. In the last record of the institution published this year are reported as being absent from the station. Others at the English Baptist mission at Shan Fu in addition to Miss Beckingsdale are the Rev. A. C. Shortcock and wife, J. J. Ellison, H. S. Jenkins, M. D., and wife, the Rev. Donald Smith and wife, G. A. Charter and wife, C. Robertson, H. N. Stanley, Miss H. M. Watt, Miss Franklin and Miss Thomas.

Chinese Women Make Bandages

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—A familiar scene of civil war days when women patriots gathered to make bandages and pick lint for the wounded is repeated in Chinatown today in Sunshine Mission, where over a hundred Chinese women and girls are busy with first-aid kits and hospital supplies for the fighters in China. As the supplies are consigned to the Red Cross, they will be used for rebel and royalist alike. Three trained nurses furnished by the Episcopal Mission direct the work.

The making of garments for the refugees, particularly the children, is part of the work laid out by the Chinese women. A large shipment of Red Cross supplies consigned to Shanghai was on board when the liner Tenyo Maru sailed today for the Orient.

LAST OF FAMOUS FAMILY IS DEAD

Old Circus Performer Passes Away at End of Adventurous Career.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—August Buisley, the last of a family of seven famous circus people, died yesterday at the French Hospital.

His death marks the closing of an adventurous career. He was 64 years of age and was the only son of his family to die a natural death, the other members having died tragic deaths in following their profession of circus performers.

Buisley will be remembered as a daring aeronaut who was a pioneer in making balloon ascensions. He and his family were for a long time the star attraction at Woodward's Garden.

Death was caused by heart failure. His wife died last April. The remains will be buried Wednesday from Notre Dame Church.

WIFE ALLEGES HARTMAN OWES HER $10,500

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Fertie Hartman, the California comedian, whose former wife is suing him for alleged unpaid alimony amounting to $10,500, was ordered by Superior Judge Graham today to show cause here on December 1 for failure to pay as ordered this month's alimony of $175. The alternative, according to the mandate, will be jail sentence for contempt of court. Hartman is now in Los Angeles.

When the Hartmans were divorced Hartman was ordered to pay Mrs. Hartman $100 a month for her individual use and $75 a month for the care and education of her son.

FORMER OAKLANDERS DIVORCED IN SAN JOSE

SAN JOSE, Nov. 21.—J. H. Burkhardt, formerly of Oakland, was granted a final decree of divorce yesterday. His suit was not contested. The grounds were extreme cruelty. In his complaint he said that his wife accused him of having set fire to his home, at 408 South Twelfth street, in order to burn her and to collect the insurance on her furniture.

Senses of Taste and Smell Were Also Greatly Impaired. "I was afflicted with catarrh," writes Eugene Forbes, Lebanon, Kansas. "I took several different medicines, giving each a fair trial, but grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I was about to give up in despair, but concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking three bottles of this medicine I was cured and have not had any return of the disease." Hood's Sarsaparilla effects radical and permanent cures of catarrh. NINE INJURED WHEN CARS CRASH

Motorman Blamed for Accident Which Occurs On Key Route Pier.

Collector L. J. Brown. The crew of the Oakland train was made up of Motorman C. Doakes, Conductor R. Gethin and Collector C. Anderson. The out-bound train consisted of three coaches and the Oakland train of two, which accounted for the fact that a number of women were in the forward car. Physicians who were on the trains attended to the injured until they were removed to the hospital.

STORY OF ACCIDENT. Benjamin Wright, proprietor of the Wright Apartments; his daughter, and Miss Benedict were on the Twenty-second street train.

Benjamin Wright, proprietor of the Wright Apartments; his daughter, and Miss Benedict were on the Twenty-second street train. The train was going over to San Francisco to spend the evening, said Miss Gladys Wright in describing the wreck. "The party consisted of my father, my sister Miss Edith Benedict, a friend who is visiting with me, and myself. We were seated in two seats together near the front of the first car in the train. There were two cars in the train. We were just preparing to leave our seats, when I glanced through the front door of the car and saw a Berkeley car coming towards us, apparently on the same track. I turned to speak to my father when the two trains crashed together.

"My father was thrown across the seat in front of him and was cut with flying glass. Miss Benedict was injured in a similar manner, while my sister had her foot crushed. I fortunately escaped practically uninjured.

CAR WAS WELL CROWDED. "There was a great deal of excitement immediately after the wreck. Women screamed and several fainted. The car was fairly well crowded.

"I turned to see how badly my father and sister were injured. My father told me that he was hurt across his stomach and that his foot had been crushed. I was hardly able to walk at first, and Miss Benedict seemed badly hurt, and was greatly excited.

"Fortunately we were able to get out of the car in a short while and were placed upon an Oakland car and taken home. My father was examined and his injuries were discovered to be more serious than we at first thought. I telephoned to the Merritt Hospital for an ambulance and had him taken there.

"I was on the train which left Broadway at 7:18 p. m. and was riding in the second car of the train," said George G. MacKinnon, an Oakland real estate dealer who lives at 1518 Brush street.

"There was a sharp thump as the trains collided. The overhead wires blazed out and showers of sparks fell all around us. We thought that the trains were going to be burned.

"As soon as we could we got out of the car and the first thing I saw was a group of trainmen standing together panic-stricken. All the lights were out. The people in the first car of the Twenty-second street train were hemmed in and crying for a light."

Quietly the Southern Pacific has been gradually acquiring blocks of land and rights of way to permit of the construction of a cut similar to that used in Easton city by which its trains can be run beneath the surface of the street under Townsend, Brannan, Bryant, Harrison, Folsom, Howard and Mission streets direct to Market street, meeting the main trunk street railway system of San Francisco. The plans of the company were made years ago, but it was only after the fire that it was feasible to purchase the lands needed at anything but an exorbitant rate. It is understood now that most of the necessary land has been obtained, and it will only be a short time, it is thought, before work will be begun and before 1915 the entire trackage will be laid and a depot and office building constructed which will be second to none in this country.

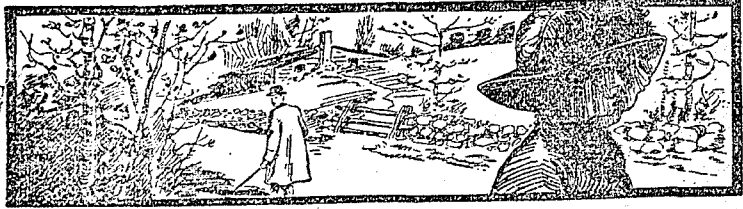

TOO MANY THERE, SAYS MITCHELL Vice-president of Federation Declares Mine Workers' Convention Was Packed.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 21.—Vice-President John Mitchell sprang a surprise on the convention floor of the American Federation of Labor today when he made the charge that the Columbus convention of the United Mine Workers which passed resolutions directing its delegates to request the re-nomination of Federation officials who were not officials of the National Civic Federation, was packed with delegates who did not belong there.

Mr. Mitchell is a delegate from the Mine Workers and bears instructions to support the resolution. He denounced the measure, however, declaring that it was adopted by a packed convention while he was in the Supreme Court of the United States defending himself against the enemies of labor. The Civic Federation was warmly defended by Mr. Mitchell.

SISTER OF AXTELL FAINTS IN COURT

"DEACON JONES" SHOT BY PLAYFUL BOY

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Deacon Jones, colored, whose right name is Henry Fields, and who is a well known character of San Francisco, and is daily seen about the streets attired in a uniform, was accidentally shot in the right forearm this morning as he was walking along Scott street near Geary.

Jones was passing the residence of J. Jackson, 1415 Scott street, when Jackson's little son, Elmer, aged 5, who had been playing with a pistol in the front room, discharged the weapon, the bullet striking the deacon and causing him to fall to the sidewalk. It is presumed that Elmer was unaware that the gun was loaded and playfully pointed it at the colored man, who smiled up at him as he passed by. Deacon Jones was taken to the Central Emergency hospital, where the bullet was extracted.

J. E. Parker, 2021 No. Tenth street, Ft. Smith, Ark., says that he has taken many kinds of kidney medicine, but did not get better until he took Foley Kidney Pills. No matter how long you have had kidney trouble, you will find quick and permanent benefit by the use of Foley Kidney Pills. Start taking them now.

CAR OFF TRACK, LINES TIED UP

Travel on six car lines was tied up for half an hour shortly before noon today when an Elmhurst car in charge of Motorman P. C. Chance, failed to make a switch at East Fourteenth street and First avenue. The rear truck left the track and tore off the running-board of the car. Several frightened passengers, sitting on the outside, jumped to the ground for safety.

Nobody was injured. The lines that were tied up were the Alameda, Fourth avenue, Diamond, Mills College, Upper Fruitvale, San Leandro and Hayward.

LOW SENIORS OF HIGH SCHOOL ELECT OFFICERS

Jean Witter, a member of the low senior class of the Oakland High school, was elected president of the students' council of the school today. His only opponent was James Porter, crack athlete of the school, who ran a very close race.

The following were the successful candidates in today's battle: Norma Dearborn, secretary; Harry Creech, editor of the Aegis; Mildred Manuel, first associate and editor-in-chief of the Girls' Aegis; Grant Hunt, second associate; Arturo Gonzales, third associate; Maurice Knowles, fourth associate; Katherine Bangs, fifth associate; Lillian Campbell, sixth associate; Harold Reynolds, manager; John Howard, financial manager, and Frank Stewart, auditor.

started homeward. Shortly afterward they were held up by five masked men.

"Three of them carried me around the buggy, threw me down and smeared tar over my shoulders and lower limbs," the witness said. She recognized none of her assailants at the time.

"Where was Ricord?"

"He was over by the fence."

"Did you call to him to help you?"

"Yes, two or three times."

"Did the treatment you received that night make you lame?"

"It did."

The prosecution then went back to obtain a more detailed story of how much tar was applied to Miss Chamberlain's body.

The witness said not only her shoulders and limbs, but also her breast and arms were smeared with tar. Her clothing, she testified, was ruined.

"Did you succeed in getting all of the tar off of your body that night?"

"I did not; nor the next day."

A man's handkerchief, found by the witness in the road a few days after the tarring, was exhibited in evidence. It was stained with tar. The handkerchief was not identified.

Prosecutor CoCanless asked the witness if she knew any of the men she met in the road on the way home.

"Yes, I recognized Sherrill Clark, A. N. Sims and James Boozie," she answered.

Miss Chamberlain was asked on cross-examination if she had not stayed at Green's house when her mother, who is his housekeeper, was absent. She said she had.

"Did these men treat you roughly?" queried Attorney Ricke.

"They were not very rough, but I suffered ill-effects from their treatment."

"Did not you testify in a justice's court hearing in this room that you were not injured?"

"No, sir; I said no bones were broken."

"Did they tear your clothes; that is, your two undershirts, one piece union suit, corsets and stockings?"

"No, sir."

The defense excused the witnesses, with the privilege of recalling her. The State rested.

Long lines of teams were pitched about the hourhouse and automobiles lined the curbs for blocks two hours before the court opened today for the second session of the trial.

The testimony of Edward Ricord, the barber who rescued the school teacher, of Chester Anderson and Delbert Kindersperger has caused a hush to fall upon corner convalesces at which the "tar party" previously had been discussed largely in the line of a joke. Grim details, given in evidence, have created a generally more serious view of what is now often styled "the county's disgrace."

Ricord told today of meeting Sherrill Clark, one of the defendants, on the Sunday morning following the attack. "What do you think they will do to me?" Ricord testified he asked Clark.

"If they send you to the penitentiary," the witness alleged Clark said, "Mary will go, too, as I have evidence which will convict her."

An attempt of the defense on cross-examination to question Ricord regarding his previous acquaintance with Miss Chamberlain was stopped by an objection by the State.

"Has anyone told you that if you testified you had improper relations with Miss Chamberlain you would be sent to prison," Attorney McCurdy asked suddenly.

ACCUSES SHERIFF

Ricord was adverse to answering, but finally replied.

"Sheriff Wolford."

On re-direct examination Ricord testified that he had made two attempts to attack Miss Chamberlain while they were in the buggy, but was unsuccessful.

"She wanted me to turn around and go home," he said.

Sheriff Wolford followed Ricord on the stand and denied Ricord's charge against him.

Benjamin Painter, one of four boys who hid behind a hedge near the scene of the attack, then testified. The fact that the hedge was thick and his memory poor prevented him from giving any valuable testimony.

Details of a meeting at Sherrill Clark's Shady Bend mill to plan the attack were recited by Watson Scranton, who recently pleaded guilty to assisting in the attack on Scranton, Sherrill and E. G. Clark, Chester Anderson, A. N. Sims, Jay Fitzwater and James Boozie helped plan the attack.

The three men now on trial, Sherrill Clark, John Schmidt and A. N. Sims, did not participate in the attack, Scranton said, but he met them on the road headed for the "party."

Father On Trial for Killing Man Who Betrayed His Daughter.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Whether a father is justified in taking the life of a man who betrays his daughter and refuses to marry her, is a question that will come up in the case of Frank W. McMahon, who was placed on trial here today charged with the murder of George A. Leary. McMahon is a saloon-keeper and Leary was a well-to-do dealer in real estate.

Justifiable homicide was the coroner's verdict, but he was re-arrested on a warrant sworn out by Leary's relatives, charging him with murder.

Dr. J. A. JACKSON DENTIST

Advertisers in the profession have been looked upon in the category of the "seven red-faced demons" and considered a delusion and a snare. This may be true to a certain degree of the advertising dentist, but not so of the dentist who advertises. The definition of ethics is the science of human duty and the principles of right action.

Then surely the man who wants to render you service and tells you about it can hardly be considered unethical. "Entre nous," the man who has no merits to advertise and does not talk about it, but gets his fee for delivering something unworthy and the man who advertises, but advertises to mislead, are the unethical ones.

There are tricks in all trades and the inordinate desire for gain and the prevailing spirit of extravagance magnify the tricks. I do not advertise cheap work nor have new systems for performing miracles. I bore and I grind and I cut away all the decay and I fill teeth to stay filled and I still have the first patient to lose through rough treatment or causing an excessive amount of pain. Treating nervous patients has been my specialty and with that object in view I have equipped my offices with the finest and latest appliances known to modern science. My offices are nicely appointed in the heart of the city and I take the utmost pride in keeping them up to the standard of perfection. A visit will convince you of the absolute comfort and the conveniences that I offer to my patients. It does not cost you anything to talk to me, so let me look your teeth over this month and be safe instead of sorry. Give me fifteen minutes of your time and I will convince you that there is a difference between an advertising dentist and a dentist who advertises.

PAPER DISAPPEARS, CASE IS HALTED

Hearing of Miss Rose O'Day Is Postponed Until Friday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—The mysterious disappearance of a paper vital in the case of Miss Rose O'Day, singer with the Lambradi grand opera company, now playing in this city, caused the continuance of the case by Judge Shortall this morning until Friday. Miss O'Day is accused of perjury by Professor E. S. Bonelli, who was named as affiant in the divorce action of Dr. George W. Leek and his wife, Jessie Leek.

Miss O'Day made a deposition for Dr. Leek, in which she declared that while in the employ of the dentist she had seen Mrs. Leek and Professor Bonelli leaving a Fifth street lodging house together.

Professor Bonelli alleges that in swearing to this statement, Miss O'Day was guilty of perjury, and he obtained a warrant for her arrest on that charge. For three weeks the case has been continued and today it developed that a deposition of Miss O'Day, containing the alleged false statement, had mysteriously disappeared from the county clerk's office.

It developed that a man, whose identity has not been learned, opened up the sealed records of the case with a key and it is presumed that it may be he who abstracted the document. Attorney Carl Westerfield, counsel for Mrs. Leek, obtained an order for the breaking of the seals and presented it to the county clerk, who declared that he did not intend it to become operative until today. He knows nothing of the man who visited the office, broke the seal and looked through the papers.

ACCUSED DENTIST PLACED ON TRIAL

Dr. McDavit Dismisses Attorney That He May Question Girl.

SAN BERNARDINO, Nov. 21.—Dr. Arthur W. McDavit, formerly a prominent dentist was placed on trial in the county superior court here today on a statutory charge growing out of the alleged confinement of Miss Jesse McDonald in a room adjoining his office for 16 months. The young woman and her baby were present in court when the task of impugning a jury was begun.

McDavit dismissed his attorney, J. W. Stephenson, yesterday for the purpose, according to the prosecution of having in opportunity to cross-examine Miss McDonald herself. Stephenson, however, was in court today, and announced that he would make a motion to have trial behind closed doors, because the animosity shown against the prisoner by the spectators at his preliminary hearing might have an effect on the jury if repeated. The district attorney declared he would resist the motion.

Miss McDonald as chief witness against McDavit probably will take the stand immediately after a jury is impaneled. According to the district attorney, the point of her testimony will be that throughout the 16 months she spent in the darkened room adjoining McDavit's office she was under a hypnotic spell.

The conviction of Raymond prompted Fought to change his plea from not guilty to guilty.

PHYSICIANS QUESTIONED IN MOORE DIVORCE CASE

No Session of Court Is Held, Lawyers Calling in Doctors to Take Depositions on Alleged Attacks

REDWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—There was no session of court in the Moore divorce case today, but the lawyers met in Attorney Jordan's office to take depositions of physicians who treated Mrs. Moore during periods following the attacks she alleged were made on her by her husband.

YESTERDAY'S SESSION.
Mrs. Moore put two physicians on the stand yesterday to testify that she was at times badly bruised on all parts of her body, the results, she claims, of the brutality of her husband. The two physicians were Dr. W. C. Childester and Dr. H. C. Warren, both of San Mateo.

During Dr. Warren's testimony Mrs. Moore nearly collapsed over the memory of the horrors she said she had suffered and staggered from the courtroom.

Other witnesses of the day were Miss Lena Behrmann, Mrs. Moore's maid, whose testimony under cross-examination by Attorney E. B. McClanahan for Moore was not so certain or so favorable to Mrs. Moore as her story on direct examination had been. Henry William Ellicott, general purchasing agent of the Northwestern Pacific railroad and brother of Mrs. R. P. Schwerin, one of Mrs. Moore's friends, and William Wagner, Mrs. Moore's brother, contributed to the circumstances of another "scene" to the turbulent record of the Moore family.

Through the warp and woof of crimination and recrimination stood out the fact that Mrs. Moore's 12-year-old daughter, Lillian, was a witness to much of the domestic tragedy that was being enacted in the handsome San Mateo home, where there was every comfort that money could buy, but, according to the testimony, none of the comforts that are purchasable commodities, as, for instance, domestic felicity.

Dr. W. C. Childester, who was summoned to the Moore home after the most violent of the alleged family quarrels, testified that Mrs. Moore told him that Moore had accused her of improper conduct with two men.

When court convened yesterday morning Judge Buck ruled that there would be a limit to the amount of testimony touching on the consumption of alcohol, and that only such testimony could be introduced as fitted into the case.

Lena Behrmann, the maid, was the first witness called. She was cross-examined by McClanahan.

NEVER SAW BLOWS.
Regarding the "battles" she had witnessed the girl testified that Moore appeared to be seeking to get away from his wife, who Mrs. Moore followed him upstairs and into his room on one occasion.

"Wasn't Mrs. Moore the aggressor in all of the trouble?" asked McClanahan.

"I object to that question," interrupted Attorney William H. Jordan for Mrs. Moore, "as she has already testified that Moore was the aggressor."

"Did you ever see Mr. Moore strike or kick his wife?" asked Moore's attorney.

"No," replied Miss Behrmann.

PROMISED TRIP, SHE SAID.
McClanahan asked the maid if Mrs. Moore had promised her in her testimony. She said no. When the girl was on the stand in the afternoon McClanahan obtained the admission from her that she had telephoned to Moore; that Mrs. Moore had said, "She would like to take her (Lena) to Paris with her if she secured her divorce."

Lena insisted that statement was not made to influence her testimony. McClanahan questioned Lena regarding a visit she made to the office of Moore's separation. The daughter, Lillian, accompanied Lena. Lena said first that she went there to take the household bills to Moore.

"Did Mrs. Moore send you there with a message to Mr. Moore, pleading with him to return?" asked the lawyer.

Lena denied that. Later, in the afternoon, she said she could not remember if there was any other message.

"BATTLE OF THE PANTRY."
When Lena described the famous "battle of the pantry" which took place on September 24, last, she declared that Mrs. Moore had insisted that Moore take back something that he had said. Moore had not done so, and she had threatened to leave him by the shoulders and shook him.

Mrs. Moore at that stage of the proceedings began sobbing. An account of Moore's request that Lena meet him in the city was not cut by the girl. She said that Moore wanted to discuss Mrs. Moore's drinking with her.

After the alleged fight in the pantry, in which Lena took part by holding Mrs. Moore's head so it would not be cut by glass, she said Moore had asked her to telephone for the police or a doctor, and she refused. Then Moore asked the child, Lillian, to telephone for the police. The little girl, however, Moore then took the telephone and asked central to send a doctor, saying that his wife was "either drunk or insane," said the witness.

HELD BROTHER'S HAND.
During this testimony Mrs. Moore held the hand of her brother, William Wagner, to steady herself.

In the afternoon Lena again was called to the stand and questioned regarding Mrs. Moore's alleged indulgence in liquor. The maid had a better memory on the subject than before. Mrs. Moore was out of the room during the greater part of the testimony.

The girl said that Mrs. Moore drank champagne and red wine at meals, and that she had mixed a cocktail for her once when returning from an automobile ride. She swore she had never seen Moore intoxicated.

McClanahan referred to several specific occasions, particularly last fourth of July night, when the Moores went to the Peninsula Hotel. Lena said she did not know what Mrs. Moore's condition was then; she had walked to the hotel, Mrs. Moore was out of the room.

"Do you remember on June 18 that Moore carried his wife upstairs and put her to bed?"

DIDN'T REMEMBER.
"I don't remember," said Lena.

She denied having told Moore that one time Mrs. Moore was unable to take a morning train because she was intoxicated. She denied also that she had ever expressed sympathy for Moore on account of his trouble with his wife.

Dr. W. C. Childester of San Mateo said that he treated Mrs. Moore at her home in September. She was in a nervous condition, he was not intoxicated, although Moore was accusing her of being drunk. He found that Mrs. Moore had discoloration marks on her arms, shoulders, breast and neck. He said, however, that he treated her for three days and she was then well enough to be out of bed.

Dr. H. C. Warren of San Mateo testified more fully regarding bruises he found on Mrs. Moore. Both sides of her neck had black and blue areas, there were contusions on her right shoulder and right breast and contusions on her abdomen, and she complained of pains in her ears.

LED FROM ROOM.
It was during the grim recital of these injuries that Mrs. Moore had to be led from the courtroom in almost a state of collapse. In August and October Dr. Warren had treated Mrs. Moore for insomnia.

Dr. Warren said that Moore told him of charges he had made against his wife involving Fenwick and Dr. MacMonagle.

Henry William Ellicott, the brother of Mrs. R. P. Schwerin, testified that he had called at the Moore house frequently. Moore had once talked with him of a pistol, which Moore took out in the yard and fired. Its bearing on the case was enigmatical. Ellicott had never noticed any impropriety in Mrs. Moore's conduct.

William Wagner, Mrs. Moore's brother, who is an automobile salesman, testified to a "scene" that occurred in December, 1910, one which had not been testified to before, but which contained some dramatic possibilities. Dr. Beverly MacMonagle was the motif.

DRAMATIC INCIDENT.
Moore had accused his wife of improper conduct with MacMonagle, said the witness. "He said he would kill his wife," Wagner testified. "Then she jumped up from her place and stood before him, with her hands outstretched, saying, 'Here I am, strike me, kill me.'"

"Moore grabbed a quart champagne bottle, and my sister put her hands in front of her to defend herself. They struck Moore in the face." It is this casual blow that Moore will claim knocked out a tooth and blackened his eye.

WOMAN AWAKENS TO FIND BURGLAR

Mrs. Margaret Speas Turns On Light and Then Faints Away.

Awakened from sound sleep by the sound of someone moving about in her room, Mrs. Margaret Speas of 410 Seventh street switched on the electric light and saw a burglar masked with a red bandana handkerchief and carrying a revolver, facing her in the center of the room.

"Where is your money?" he demanded, leveling the revolver at the woman cowering in the bed.

Mrs. Speas attempted to speak, but her panic was so great that she fainted, and when she recovered consciousness the room was again in darkness. She called to other lodgers in the house and when search was made it was discovered that the burglar had escaped, and had taken $260 in cash with him.

The burglary was reported to the police, and every effort is being made to locate the thief. The room was entered by the use of a skeleton key, the burglary occurring about four o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. Speas was in a highly nervous condition when the police were called to the place, and was at first unable to give coherent answers to their questions. It was found that the thief had taken $50 in gold and $200 in bills was taken.

Mrs. Speas described the thief as tall and slim, wearing a black suit of clothes. He wore a dark slouch hat and carried a large revolver. Inspectors Flynn and McMorley have been detailed to investigate the case.

Other burglaries and thefts reported to the police are as follows:
J. F. Wilker, 161 East Fourteenth street, was robbed from a rear door by burglars in attempt to enter house, but burglars are frightened away; nothing taken.

T. P. Black of 5501 Trask street, stable at rear entered and articles valued at $100 taken.

Mrs. H. Breining of Thirty-fourth and West streets reported basement entered and plumbing and electric light fixtures stolen.

MRS. GOURAUD TO TURKEY TROT

To Show to Select Few Everything Wild, Weird and Tumultuous in Dances.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Tropical dances, tempestuous dances, dances filled with wild, weird tumult; slow, throbbing dances that turn the soul in beam; dances of the East, suggesting the Oriental occult and devout; turkey trots and Honolulu hoola-hoola—all are on Mrs. Jackson Gouraud's amazing winter program.

This winter Mrs. Gouraud, who was formerly Miss Amy Grover of San Francisco, is going to waken society from its dull, lethargic trance and set all the dancing madams to a new evening party. Sunday night, in her home at 46 West Fifty-sixth street, this brilliantly original society woman gave a prelude entertainment to the winter's "big show."

Yesterday she revealed the terrific extent of her program, and described as far as words can describe some of the tremendous sarabands, capricios and artistic dream dances she has garnered from the four corners of the earth and intends to put in vogue among her friends.

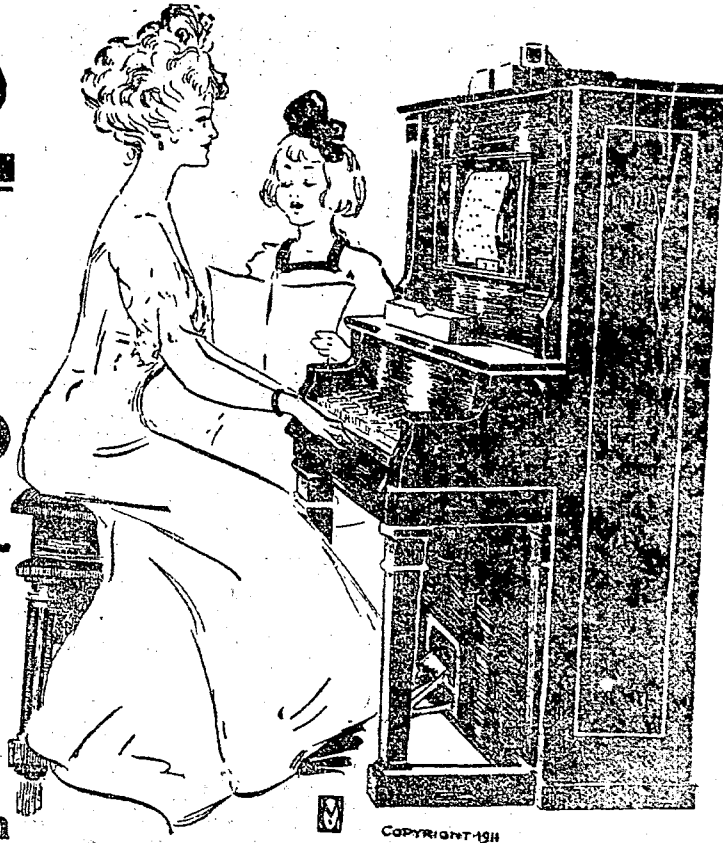

Mrs. Gouraud has learned them all, and volunteers are swarming to her to get the steps and paces. A select little gathering of 20 social and evening people Sunday night and departed in a state of mad infatuation, shrilling their praises of Mrs. Gouraud's wonderful art.

BROKER SWEET IS PLACED ON TRIAL

Misappropriation of Peoples Water Co. Bonds Charge Against Him.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—W. W. Sweet, a local broker, was placed on trial in Judge Duane's court this morning charged with embezzlement for the alleged misappropriation of 88 bonds of the Peoples Water company of Oakland. Sweet was indicted by the grand jury on the testimony of F. C. Havens, president of the corporation, it being alleged that on July 15, 1908, the bonds were turned over to Alexander Baum, an attorney, who in turn disposed of them to Sweet. The Peoples Water company, at that time, obtained a loan on the bonds and alleged that when they wanted them back they were unable to procure them. Baum was recently acquitted of the charge for which Sweet is being tried today. The jury was impaneled during the morning session.

LUSTY LUNGS SAVED PEDESTRIAN HIS PURSE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—The lusty cry of Frank Jarz, of 2682 Howard street, caused the capture of two of a gang of four thugs who attempted to hold him up at 19th and Mission streets early this morning. The quartette surrounded him and one of them struck him on the head, knocking him to the street, and a second attempted to get his purse from his pocket. He yelled and tried to fight them off. Policemen Flattery and Earlight responded and together with Jarz chased them for five blocks. The two who were finally captured gave their names as William Smith and William Carr and were charged at the Mission station with attempted robbery.

COUNTY TEACHERS ORGANIZE HERE

Men Hear Lecture From Mayor J. Stitt Wilson of Berkeley.

The men teachers of Alameda county met in the Forum banquet hall Monday evening for the purpose of perfecting an organization. H. D. Brasefield, chairman of the Men's Club of Oakland, presided, and S. E. Coleman acted as secretary. The brief program was as follows:
"Educational Reforms and the Social Movement," Mayor J. Stitt Wilson, Berkeley; "The Advantages of Changing the Summer Vacation of Schools of Alameda County to July and August," report of Committee on Organization.
The purposes of the club are stated to be "Mutual Discussion of School Problems, the Preparation of a Plan of the Interests of the Schools of this county and of Ourselves, and General Social Intercourse."
Under the rules, the chairman has the authority to appoint an executive committee to prepare programs and for the general management of the club. About 125 men were present, there being representatives from every section of the county. The following officers were unanimously elected:
J. M. Fisher, Manual Training and Commercial High, president; H. D. Brasefield, Fremont High, vice-president; S. E. Coleman, Oakland High, secretary-treasurer.
The president-elect appointed G. W. Wright, principal of the Contra Costa High School, and C. L. Bledsoe, principal of the McKinley School, Berkeley. These two with the three elected officers constitute the executive committee.
The women members of the faculty of the Manual Training and Commercial High School held their first meeting for the discussion of their new duties as electors in the school building at 3:30 Monday. A number of teachers from other schools in the city were present by invitation. Allen Dunbar, representing the county clerk's office spoke to the teachers for three-quarters of an hour, holding their attention closely throughout. He was frequently interrupted by questions in order that points might be cleared up. The interesting announcement was made that Miss Keefe, head of the Department of Civics and History in the Manual Training and Commercial High School, was formerly Cunha's teacher in these subjects in the San Jose High School. After the meeting a tea was served in the domestic science room. There will be no further meetings of the club this term, but during the next term, meetings will be held probably semi-monthly, and a course of instruction will be delivered through the spring term.

M'NAMARA CASE MARKED BY LIVELY VERBAL TILT

Darrow, State and Court Indulge in Wordy War Over Challenging of Talesman Mooney

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—A tug-of-war over Talesman M. F. Mooney marked the McNamara murder trial today. S. L. Vermilyea, special assistant district attorney, undertook to see whether Mooney, who was accepted by the defense yesterday, had any disqualifications from the standpoint of the people, and Clarence S. Darrow, chief of counsel for James S. McNamara, who is being tried for the murder of Charles J. Hagerty, a victim of the Los Angeles Times explosion and fire, stood with one foot in the vacant chair of District Attorney Fredericks and interposed an incessant fire of objections, most of which were overruled by Judge Walter Bordwell. The State finally challenged Mooney and he was excused.
"Your objection has been overruled," Mr. Darrow, said the court, interrupting Darrow at one point.
"Another ground."
"We have another ground for objection," said Darrow.
"It is understood that you are objecting on all possible grounds," said the court. "Let the talesman answer."
After a hour's work by Attorney Vermilyea, the court himself took a hand in the examination, and then challenged Mooney because he had said he would not convict on circumstantial evidence alone in a case involving the death penalty.
"I object," said Darrow. "The State has no right to pick out such talesman as it wants who make the same objection as the talesman who was rejected, and then exclude the men they don't want on the same grounds."
"If the court please," cried Assistant District Attorney G. Ray Horton. "I don't want any argument on the point," said the judge.
"The statement is unfair," finished Horton, and took his seat.
"The challenge is allowed," said the judge. "You may go, Mr. Mooney."

DRAFTING ROOM
Judge Walter Bordwell's courtroom will look like the drafting room of a civil engineer's office within a few weeks, if present plans in the McNamara murder trial are carried out, taking up the drafting room, and a crime was committed in the explosion which wrecked the Los Angeles Times over a year ago, with the loss of twenty-one lives, opposing counsel are planning first to establish the fact that the Los Angeles Times building existed at the intersection of First street and Broadway and that it was a building of a certain sort. To this end, they are preparing floor plans and street diagrams and complete models have been prepared by experts and it is possible that days will be spent, after the jury is sequestered, in introducing and labeling these exhibits. The models, or some of them, are cut away so as to show the interior of the building with tiny linotypes, printing presses, office furniture, a stockpile of typesetting machinery, all made to scale and all in place. "Ink alleys," a driveway which entered the building proper, will be shown, as will another set of north of the building, in order that the jury may be convinced in any testimony given regarding either of these points. When this part of the work is done the prosecution expects to start the presentation of its case against James S. McNamara, on trial for the murder of Charles J. Hagerty, one of the Times victims.
CHANGE EATING PLACE
An entire change was made today in arrangements for feeding jurors and talesman in the case. A private house in Berkeley, near the residence of the late John D. Rockefeller, was selected for the purpose. The hall of Records was opened for the accommodation at meal times by Sheriff William A. Hammel, and at the noon recess the men in the jury box marched to the foot of the hill, packed themselves into a little car which runs to the top and back and rode up to a luncheon prepared by a special cook and served by special waiters engaged by the county authorities. Heretofore the talesman and jurors have had their meals at a restaurant. They will continue to sleep in the room set apart for their use in the Hall of Records.
Examination of M. F. Mooney, accepted yesterday by the defense, was scheduled to be continued today when court opened. Attorney S. L. Vermilyea, acting as a special assistant to District Attorney John D. Fredericks, asked Mooney many questions yesterday without either challenge or accepting him before court closed. The examination was watched closely by Attorney Clarence S. Darrow, chief of counsel for the defense, because of the prospect that Mooney might be qualified as to cause and that if the State wished to remove him one of its five remaining peremptory challenges would have to be used. Others in the jury box were Robert Bain, F. D. Green, Byron Lisk, J. B. Sexton and William Andre all sworn jurors; J. H. Marshall and F. A. McBurney accepted as talesmen; and J. H. O'Connell, J. Stevens, Lyman B. Jacobus and F. A. Brode yet to be examined.
CARNATIONS IN BUTTNOLES.
When court convened at 9:10 o'clock the five sworn jurors and seven talesmen filed into the chamber with bright carnations in their noses. The wife of one of the jurors. Last night the jury attended the theater, occupying boxes with a squad of court bailiffs.
"My first impression after I heard of the explosion was that it had been caused by some enemy of the Times," explained Talesman Mooney, when Attorney Vermilyea continued the examination for the State, "and later I had the impression that it might have been an accident."
Turning to the question of circumstantial evidence, Mooney was asked if he could bring in a verdict of guilty in a case where the evidence was entirely circumstantial. He declared that he could not. The State here challenged Mooney for implied bias. The challenge was allowed.
Lowman W. Traver took Mooney's place in the jury box. He was asked the new talesman if he had any conscientious scruples against the penalty.
"I do have," said Traver, "on circumstantial evidence."
"I don't ask you that," said the court.
"I am simply inquiring as to your conscience on the death penalty. Have you any scruples against it?"
"I ask the court to excuse the talesman on the same ground that Mooney has just been excused," said Attorney Darrow for the defense.
"The application will be denied at this time," as I think he ought to be examined by counsel."
"But, your honor, it gives the State an advantage in that after all our questions they know they can disqualify or qualify by asking or not asking his views on circumstantial evidence."
"Well, the law simply provides for asking the juror as to his conscientious scruples on the death penalty, and of course, we will have to take the law as we find it and as I understand it," said Judge Bordwell.
"I understand that," rejoined Darrow. "But I want to note an exception and make a record."
"I'll not excuse the talesman, but the ruling is without prejudice and I will further consider the authorities," commented Judge Bordwell casually, and of S. F. O'Connell was begun by Attorney Darrow.
Talesman O'Connell was challenged by the district attorney and Judge Bordwell said he would give his decision later.
The next talesman, Jackson Stevens, a farmer, was placed in the witness chair next. Stevens, who is 53 years of age, said he had had a very little education and Attorney Darrow interrogated him to test his mental competency. He last read a book 30 years ago. It was the life of General Grant, but he did not remember the author.
Court recessed at noon with Stevens still under examination.

VETERAN OF WAR AND PEACE DIES

Hall B. Rand, Who Served 24 Years With Oakland Police, Is Dead.

Hall B. Rand, the oldest retired member of the Oakland police force, died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. John Damon of 4233 Duboce street in San Francisco, at an early hour this morning, death being due to natural decline from old age. Rand was 86 years of age. He was appointed to the Oakland force in 1877.
For many years Rand has been honored by other members of the Oakland police force as the oldest retired officer, and at the annual drills and reviews, he appeared in full uniform and greeted his former conferees. A recognized and time honored custom on these occasions of ceremony was the firing of a salute by Rand, who used an old musket he had carried in the Civil war.
For the last year or more Rand has been residing with his daughter in San Francisco, but at the last drill came to Oakland especially to be present. The old man was so feeble that when he fired his annual salute, the recoil of the gun almost carried him from his feet, and he was supported by two officers as he fell backward.
Rand was appointed to the police force in Oakland February 5, 1877, and served until July 1, 1901, when he was permanently retired with honors. His total service was 24 years, four months and 28 days.
The decedent is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Damon, and by a son, Dr. D. H. Rand of Portland, Oregon.
The funeral will be held from the Masonic Temple in Oakland under the auspices of the local lodge of the Free and Accepted Masons, of which Rand was a member. Services will be held Friday afternoon at one o'clock at the temple. A large number of the older members of the Oakland police force will attend in full uniform.
MUSICAL SHEEP.
There does not seem much connection between good sheep and good music, but there is. If it were not for the genuine wool from the good sheep that is used to make the felt for the hammers on the pianos and Player-pianos now being distributed by the Kohler & Chase Club, the music would not be so good.

STEAMER FORCED TO USE HER CARGO FOR FUEL

Telling a tale of having run out of fuel while out on the high seas the steam schooner Point Arena, Captain Ferguson, arrived yesterday and laid at the Hogan Lumber Company's wharf where she discharged 135,000 feet of lumber. Over 15,000 feet of the vessel's original cargo was burned because of the lack of fuel and had it not been for the splendid example set by Captain Ferguson it is probable that the crew might have taken to the boats. The vessel shipped several seas and her entire cargo was wet when she dropped anchor on this side. She left late this morning for San Francisco.

DOCKWEILER BUYS STOCK IN WATER COMPANY

"I Had to Do It to Get Access to Books," Says Expert for the City.

To obtain access to the records of the Peoples Water Company in accordance with the agreement between the company and the city in 1909, City Consulting Engineer J. H. Dockweiler has been forced to become a stockholder in the corporation, according to a communication from the engineer to the city council this morning. Dockweiler declared that he was not interested in the company, and that he considered there should be no secrets between a public service corporation and the duly accredited representative of the people.
"HAMPERED IN WORDS."
Dockweiler was authorized by the council to prepare reports as to the operation and construction expenditures of the company, and according to his report, he has been hampered in his work by failure of the company officials to give him access to the books and records of the company.
The holding of stock in the company gives Dockweiler the legal right to force the company to give him this information. The action of the consulting engineer in purchasing stock was approved by the council and the report placed on file.
ENGINEER'S REPORT.
The report is as follows:
"To the Council of the City of Oakland: I desire to advise you that I have purchased ten shares of Peoples Water Company common stock, which has been transferred to me, and that I have been since November 17, 1911, a stockholder of record in said company, evidenced by certificate A 107.
"My reason for becoming a stockholder are as follows:
"By virtue of ordinance No. 2814 of the City of Oakland, appointing me consulting engineer, I am prepared and submit to the Council of the City of Oakland, a bi-monthly report on the operation and construction expenditures of the company, and a description of any and all properties and works charged to the construction account of the Oakland division of the Peoples Water Company. I have been permitted access to the books and records of the company, and together with all reports bearing upon the same on file in the office of the chief engineer of the company, I have been enabled to prepare the report which I am submitting to you this morning.
When Mr. W. F. Kelley became vice-president and general manager of the Peoples Water Company, I had been permitted access to the books and records of the company, and together with all reports bearing upon the same on file in the office of the chief engineer of the company, I have been enabled to prepare the report which I am submitting to you this morning.
Therefore, in order to place myself in a position to secure the data which I require, I reluctantly was compelled to become a stockholder, and as such, to acquire legal right to obtain any data I may desire. Officially I am entitled to any data bearing on the operation and construction of the Oakland division. This by virtue of my position as created by the City Council, towards carrying out the 'Pendleton' agreement relative to water rates.
I hold as fundamental that there can be no secrets between a public service corporation and the duly accredited representative of the people whom it serves.
The following testimony given by Mr. Louis Titus, president of Peoples Water Company, recently I asked Mr. George Wilhelm, chief engineer of the Peoples Water Company, for a copy of the final statement of the engineer in charge of the construction of the Oakland division, and I was informed by him that he could not deliver the same to me, without authorization from the company. I took up the matter with Mr. F. C. Havens personally who promised to give it to me. On October 28, 1911, I wrote to the chief engineer concerning the matter, and have not as yet received a written reply from him, nor have I received the data which I require.

EVERY MOVEMENT HAD ITS MEANING

The "Madame Sherry" Waltz, Played in Church, Fills Contribution Box.

CHICO, Nov. 21. — Every little movement of the orchestra and the ushers of the Chico Baptist church had a meaning all its own when the collection was taken up at the regular services. Also, a modern musical comedy tune, it was found, could be successfully graded on the church organ pipes and bear good fruit. Furthermore, there was something like vindication for those leaders of Protestant churches who insist that the old hymn tunes may with profit be relegated to the basement while the choir lofts devote itself to something more modern.

While the contribution box was being passed at the church the congregation was electrified by a new air played by the excellent orchestra. There was a secular lilt to the tune that carried the hand of the parishioner into his dearest pocket and brought it forth in waltz time, jangling with coin. The ushers, as they passed the plate, stepped more lightly than their wont.

Most of those in the church were beginning innocent of the name of the air that was being played, though they knew that it was the popular waltz number from "Madame Sherry."

The orchestra is composed of Messrs. Frederickson, Johnson, Dutro and Mrs. O. Graber.

ASTRONOMERS STUDY DEEP MARITIME SECRETS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—Observations are being made by Professor E. E. Barnard, one of the world's most eminent astronomers, through the sixty-inch telescope on Mount Wilson, that may lead to startling deductions during the present favorable opposition of the planet Mars.

Professor Barnard during the past week has taken photographs of Mars and is studying the markings with earnestness. His deductions may either confirm or reject some of the most interesting theories of astronomers here and abroad.

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs, which, unfortunately, are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hairs, however, are not always an indication of advancing age, for many people have gray hairs quite early in life. Of course, it is unnatural, and indicates that there is something wrong with the individual, and that Nature needs assistance in correcting the trouble. The same is true of hair that is constantly falling out and becoming thinner every day. If everything is right with Nature, the hair, even in comparatively elderly people, should be long, thick and glossy, without even a streak of gray. The ideal assistant to Nature in re-

COMMISSION BARS STOCK WATERING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. — The commission of which President Hadley of Yale is chairman, appointed by President Taft to investigate stock watering, has filed a report, making the following recommendations:

Federal supervision and control of all issues of stocks and bonds.

A special valuation of railroad property by the government.

Publication of actual values or conditions approximating thereto.

Legislation making it a criminal offense for organizers of interstate corporations to capitalize beyond the actual physical value of the property and a reasonable estimate of good will where such enters into the capitalization.

It is understood that President Hadley, in questioning the popular walks number from "Madame Sherry."

OMAHA, Nov. 21.—Fire which originated on the third floor of a building at Thirteenth and Howard streets, occupied by the A. L. Reconstruction work on the $1,500,000 memorial chapel has begun in earnest. The contractors are on the ground and the preliminary work of preparation for the masons is going on yesterday. It is expected that the stonecutters will start in tomorrow. The contour of the church when finished will be exactly the same as it was previous to its destruction in the earthquake of 1906.

VIOLATES PAROLE; RETURNED TO CELL

Wiley Rudolph Must Complete His Eight-year Term in Prison.

Wiley Rudolph, who, on May 22, 1908, began an eight years' sentence at San Quentin for forgery committed in Alameda county, and who, on March 1, 1911, was released on parole, has been returned to the prison for violating his ticket of leave.

It is a law of the prison directorate that positions must be found for prisoners, before they can be released on parole, and Rudolph, on his release, proceeded immediately to Los Angeles, where a position with a large electrical corporation had been provided for him, by a deputy parole officer, Rudolph being under the direct supervision of the manager of that concern. He received a wage of $2.50 a day, the parole officer finding him board and lodgings with a respectable Los Angeles family.

According to the parole official, Rudolph had been in the southern city but a short time when again mingled with evil associates and began a career of dissipation. On November 1 he failed to make his regular monthly report. He was arrested a few days ago in Salt Lake City.

TWICE WEDS AND DIVORCES HUSBY

Judge Waste Grants Wealthy Hayward Woman Interlocutory Decree.

Clara Weininger, of Hayward, who owns a large ranch in that neighborhood and has other property in this county, has been granted an interlocutory decree of divorce by Superior Judge Waste from Max C. Weininger on the ground of willful desertion. Mrs. Weininger testified that she married Weininger twice. She secured a divorce from him in Missouri on the grounds of infidelity. She married him again in Santa Cruz in 1910 and two months afterwards he left her for his native home in Bavaria to claim an interest in a large estate left by his father, promising to return after the matter was settled up. Weininger in course of time sent $1000 that he owed his wife to her asking her to join him in Europe, but refused to go. She told the court that since then she had heard nothing from her husband.

MODESTO STIRRED BY WAR OVER RAILROAD

MODESTO, Nov. 21.—A special meeting of the city council called by Mayor George J. Wren, adopted a resolution which may precipitate an armed conflict over a thoroughfare of this city between the employees of the street department and the workmen of the San Joaquin Valley Electric Railroad, which is being built from Stockton to this city.

The resolution requests the superintendent of streets to proceed forthwith to return Eighth street to its former condition, a step which provides for filling more than a mile of ditch dug recently for roadbed.

This action by the city council followed a long and sharp dispute between Mayor Wren and George Perley, commissioner of public works, on one side and Morris Brackett, president and general manager of the electric line. Mayor Wren notified Brackett a week ago that if laying out of the street was not begun by yesterday, the city would fill in the roadbed. Nothing having been done by the company, the resolution was adopted unanimously.

A call for help was responded to by Peoria's fire department, which, together with the village equipment, succeeded in controlling the conflagration after a hard fight.

CUMMINS GUILTY OF GREAT THEFT

The Carnegie Trust Man Sobs When Convicted; Faces Term in Prison.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—William J. Cummins, the former Tennessee promoter and recent directing head of the Carnegie Trust Company, has been found guilty of the theft of $140,000 from the Nineteenth Ward bank by a jury before which he has been on trial for the last five weeks. He was remanded to the Tombs until Friday, when his counsel may present any motions desired before sentence is pronounced. Cummins seemed stunned by the result. His attitude throughout the trial was one of apparent assurance and cheerfulness. After the verdict was announced the prisoner remained standing in an evident gaze as Judge Davis thanked the jury. When told by a court attendant that he might sit down, he sank heavily into his chair, and sank heavily into his chair.

When his pedigree was taken the convicted banker's replies were scarcely audible, but before he was led from the courtroom he seemed to have recovered some of his composure.

At the Tombs, however, he broke down and sobbed.

"It is not myself that I am thinking about—there are others," he said, as he sat weeping on a bench in the warden's office. The rising to his feet he exclaimed fervently:

"The fight is just beginning. I feel I have done nothing wrong and I am confident that if I was confronted with the same circumstances again I would do the same thing."

The penalty for Cummins' offense is an indeterminate term of from five to ten years as the maximum sentence. Cummins is 50 years old and has a wife and a married daughter.

OAKLAND FUGITIVE AND WIFE FOOL OFFICIALS

TULARE, Nov. 21.—Frank Davis, who, with his wife, is being sought by the police of Oakland and San Francisco on a charge of having fraudulently solicited funds for an alleged Helping Hand mission in the bay cities, was in this city Saturday for several hours, but left before the officers here knew that he was wanted.

Davis appeared here in company with his wife, and made a preliminary visit to the business men, asserting that he expects to remain here and establish a home for the unemployed, taking in the whole of the territory of the southern end of the San Joaquin valley. He made no attempt to secure funds. It is evident that Davis discovered a warning against him. Davis has been here before and on a previous visit is said to have secured quite a comfortable amount of money.

BIG LAND TRACT TO BE IRRIGATED BY YUBA

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 21.—The Hallwood Irrigation Company and the Stahl brothers have secured a permit from the United States government to build an intake at Daguerre point which will enable them to take water from the Yuba river at all seasons of the year. The work must begin within six weeks and be completed in one year from November 3, 1911.

The capacity of the tunnel, which will be concrete lined, will be about 7000 miners' inches of water, or enough to irrigate 10,000 acres. A large area of the county northeast of Marysville was irrigated last summer by the Hallwood system, but the intake then used was of too small a capacity.

TO IRRIGATE TRACT.

ORVILLE, Nov. 21.—That between 500,000 and 1,000,000 acres of land, much of it near this city, will be irrigated by water from the Big Meadows reservoir of the Great Western Power company is the statement made by Mortimer Fleishacker, president of the Great Western Power company and the chief representative of Edwin Hayley in the corporation.

HYDRO-AEROPLANE FOR WAR VESSELS

Aeronautic Chief of Navy and Staff Solving the Motor Problem.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Another year will see the hydro-aeroplane developed to such an extent that each battleship of the American navy may have its own flying machine, in the opinion of Captain Washington I. Chambers, who has charge of the aeronautical work in the Navy Department.

Captain Chambers believes that as soon as a motor is found for the motor problem, on which practically all aviation experts are now working, the installation of hydro-aeroplanes as a part of the equipment of battleships will be begun.

It is not considered probable that the naval aeronauts will follow the plan of the army and move its equipment south for practice during the winter. When the weather at Annapolis, where the navy hydro-aeroplane experiments are carried on, becomes favorable for flying purposes, the aeronauts will give attention exclusively to the motor problem. They believe that by the time the flying season opens again in the spring they will have perfected a motor peculiarly adapted to their purposes.

BANDITS CAPTURED AND IDENTIFIED BY VICTIM

OKOVILLE, Nov. 21.—C. R. Kellogg, a produce buyer for a San Francisco firm, was held up in the heart of the residence section of Oroville Saturday evening by two men. They took about $50, a watch, ring and pin.

Marshal Curran boarded the next electric car out of Oroville and placed R. Donahue under arrest as a suspect. At the sheriff's office, two $20 gold pieces were found in the man's shoes. The stolen goods were found secreted in his clothing. Kellogg identified the prisoner as one of the two men who had held him up. Donahue has served five sentences in state prisons.

STOCK TO GO IN YOSEMITE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The United States supreme court has reversed the federal court of Northern California, which upheld the right of Major H. J. Brownson, superintendent of Yosemite, to prevent J. B. Curtin, owner of lands within the limits of the park, from driving cattle to his lands, through the park, unless Curtin entered into an agreement to fence his land. Justice McKenna announced the decision.

B. C. AND AFTER.

Three thousand years before Christ an Egyptian is said to have stumbled upon the germ of the piano. A string stretched tightly over a long thin box, accidentally vibrated, provided the explanation. What would that Egyptian exclaim if today he could see the hundreds of Pianos and Player-Pianos that are being distributed into the homes of the people through the medium of the Kohler & Chase Piano and Player-Piano Club.

Roosevelt's Plea for a Despotism.

In a recent article in The Outlook, Theodore Roosevelt has amplified the doctrine of absolutism with more candor than subtlety. He bluntly lays down the proposition that the President is justified in suspending laws which he deems unwise or injurious to the public welfare and that it is his duty to put into effect beneficial laws which Congress did not enact but, in his opinion, should have enacted.

Of course, this doctrine is directly contrary to the letter of the constitution, but the ex-President does not hesitate to assert that the constitution should not prevent the executive from doing anything (or refusing to do anything) which will redound to the public benefit. He does not say this in so many words, but that is the purport of his argument. His argument is directed mainly at the prosecution of the Steel Trust, and is intended as a reproach to President Taft for enforcing the Sherman law against that corporation. When he was President, Colonel Roosevelt virtually suspended the Sherman law—that is, he did not enforce it—and he gave his written consent for the company to do what the Attorney General says was an unlawful act.

Thus Colonel Roosevelt enters the lists as a defender of his own acts of omission and commission. Reduced to a logical conclusion his contention is that the President is not a constitutional executive, but a democratic dictator—a benevolent despot. That he carried the doctrine into effect on several notable occasions is a matter of historical record. When Congress refused to pass a bill to increase pensions, he paid the increase in the teeth of the constitutional provision that no money shall be paid out of the Treasury without the express authorization of Congress. He put the San Domingo treaty into effect notwithstanding the refusal of the Senate to ratify it. He did this in direct violation of the constitution.

It is true that Congress afterward legalized Colonel Roosevelt's action in paying the pension increase and that the Senate finally ratified the San Domingo treaty, but the fact remains that Colonel Roosevelt set aside two important provisions of the national constitution by executive order. Moreover, he broadly intimated in a public statement—pronouncement to the Mexicans would call it—taking some of the Federal Judges to task for overruling the decision of Judge Landis in the Standard Oil case, that the President ought to have the power to remove judges who did not comport themselves as the executive desired. On another occasion Colonel Roosevelt argued strenuously that it was within the power of the President to do anything the constitution did not expressly prohibit him from doing. As he did not hesitate to do things that the constitution did specifically prohibit him from doing, it is not strange that he should claim latitudinarian powers which are neither conferred nor expressly denied by the organic law. But for the fact that a subservient Congress refused to defend its own prerogatives and the provisions of the constitution, Colonel Roosevelt would have been impeached.

However, these matters have passed into history, and Colonel Roosevelt now appears in the forum of debate as a private citizen declaring a doctrine that would place the government of the United States in the category of Russia and Turkey. He proposes that the President shall break through and override all the trammels of the constitution and make and suspend laws to suit himself. He proposes that this shall be done without asking the consent of the people. He does not propose to amend or abolish the constitution, but to defy and trample upon it. That is the only construction that can be placed upon his Outlook article.

It is of small consequence that Colonel Roosevelt advocates his revolutionary doctrine in defense of the Steel Trust. The vital point is that he advocates the overthrow by arbitrary and unauthorized force our system of government and to substitute for a constitutional government of divided powers a despotism as complete as that of Ghengis Khan or Tamerlane. And plainly the ex-President would like to be the first man on the job.

In some respects the game laws of California are so silly and so unnecessarily drastic as to be exasperating. Some of the methods of enforcement are still more exasperating. The arrest of a hunter in San Francisco for having too many ducks in his possession is an instance of oppressive and unjust enforcement. It appears that two young men who had been hunting together returned to the city, one carrying the game and the other the guns. Neither had killed the bag limit, but the two bags combined exceeded the twenty-five the law allows one man to have in his possession. The man carrying the game was arrested for exceeding the bag limit, although part of the ducks he was carrying belonged to his hunting companion. He was made the victim of mere technicality, and a narrow one at that, because of the stupid or malicious over-zeal of an employee of the Fish and Game Commission. Such incidents bring the law and its agents into contempt. Moreover, there is a suspicion abroad that arrests of this character are not prompted by any good motive. They certainly do not protect game, nor serve any good purpose.

Women and the Ohio Vote-Sellers.

In a popular magazine Judge A. Z. Blair, who fined and disfranchised for five years one-third of the voters of Adams county, Ohio, for selling their votes, tells how the electorate of that county became corrupted. The vote-buying began back in Civil War times and became a fixed political custom. Men of all parties engaged in it openly. The Judge himself naively confesses that he signaled his entry into politics by buying votes—for a friend. The best citizens of the county—merchants, school teachers, lawyers, farmers, most all of them church members—bought votes as openly as they would buy potatoes or cider. Even the clergy took no shame for the business.

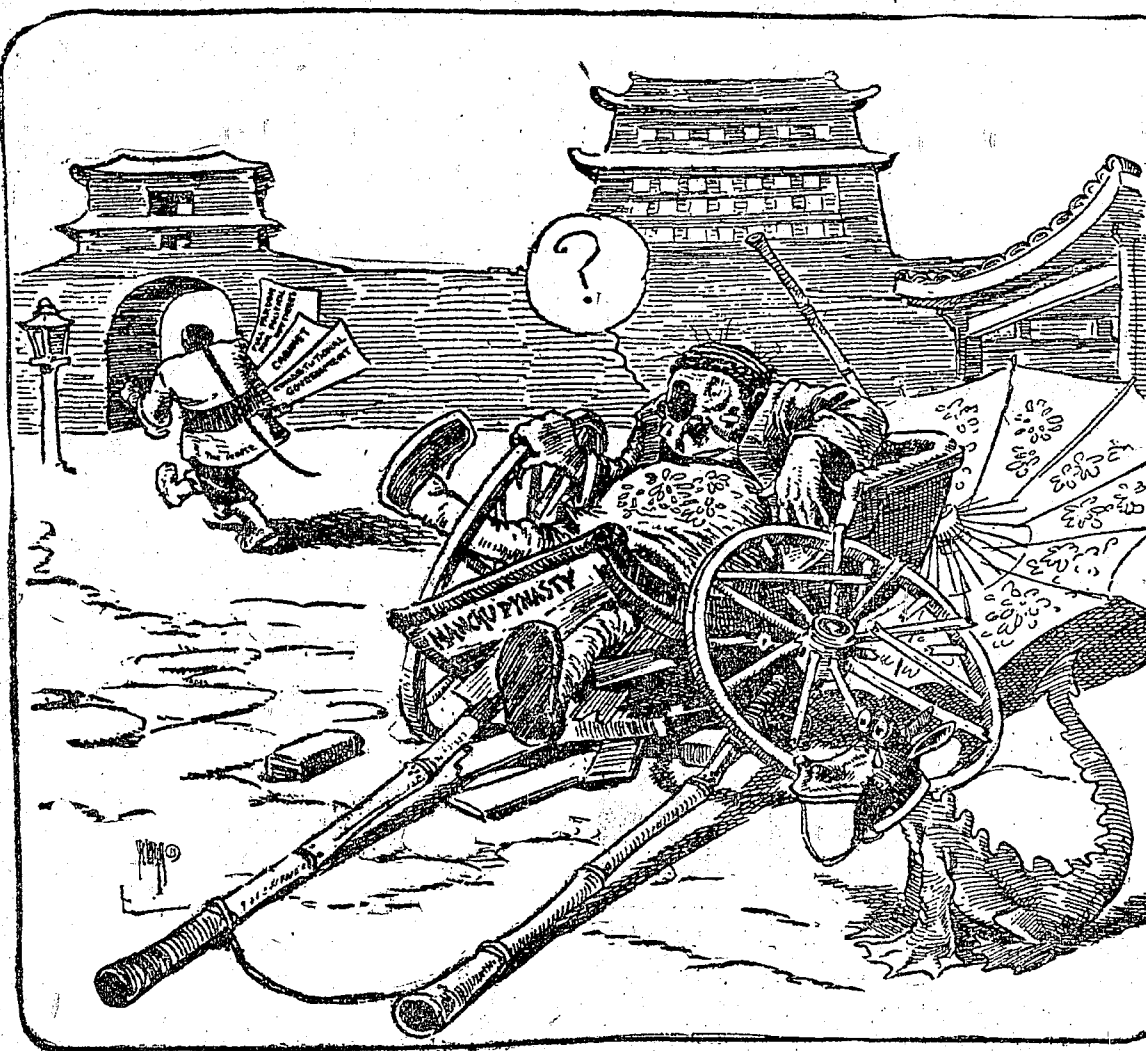

Judge Blair makes a distinction between the men who bought votes and the men who sold them. Incidentally nobody was punished in Adams county for buying votes. Only the sellers got pinched for the crime of bribery.

But the most striking thing in the Judge's narrative is the testimony he bears to the integrity of the women. Nearly all of them were opposed to the vote-buying and vote-selling business long before the moral sense of the men began to revolt against the degrading custom. The women pleaded with their men folk to stop it, to quit making merchandise of their manhood and birthright.

"I think the women were always against the vote-buying," says Judge Blair, who admits that their pleadings and protests had no small influence in bringing about the moral revolution that finally overthrew the corrupt system.

What Judge Blair says about the women of Adams county, Ohio, is worthy of attention. Evidently the women of that county were better qualified to vote than the men. They appreciated the value of the franchise and the dishonor of selling one's vote. They felt the shame of the corruption which surrounded them. They fought against it, sought to wean their husbands, brothers and sons from the degradation of being chattels instead of citizens. God bless them for it! When women lead the way to righteousness in a community so utterly corrupted they can fairly be trusted with the ballot elsewhere.

It is stated by persons who claim to be "on the inside" that Colonel William Kent, who represents (after a fashion) the Second District in Congress, will be cast by the reapportionment into a district comprising Marin, Sonoma, Mendocino, Humboldt, Lake, Trinity and Del Norte counties. Lumbering and woolgrowing are leading industries in that region, which also produces wine, hops, prunes and quicksilver—all protected by tariff duties. Colonel Kent is almost an out-and-out free trader. How will he make his peace with the lumbermen, woolgrowers and viticulturists? They are all protectionists. They may be insurgents locally, but in national politics they are standpatters. The Colonel will have a merry time explaining to them his votes to reduce the tariff on wool and lumber.

Half a dozen times during the past six months the San Francisco papers have announced that Patrick Calhoun was to be deposed from the presidency of the United Railroads at a stockholders' meeting, to be held this month. Mr. Calhoun has returned from New York and announces that he will not retire from the presidency and that there will be no stockholders' meeting till next spring. This would indicate that the "inside news" relating to the United Railroads is mere guesswork, tinged with malice.

John Fleming Wilson has a story in the last number of the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post that is deserving of attention only because it belongs to a school of alleged realism which is most unreal in its utter disregard of elemental facts and the law of probabilities. It starts out with the statement that an English-built ship was bought by an American company and re-registered under the American flag. If Mr. Wilson knew anything at all about the navigation laws of the United States he would know that foreign-built ships cannot be registered under the American flag—the law expressly prohibits it. Next Mr. Wilson makes a company of veteran shipowners talk like inmates of the home for the feeble-minded. Third, he depicts a pilot bringing a ship into port navigating the vessel under directions given by the captain—acting merely as a steersman. Apparently he does not know what the duties of a pilot are. Efforts to make a good story by eliminating facts and probabilities are all too common; but in Mr. Wilson's case the story is absolutely built upon a disregard of facts. He calls his yarn "A Cowboy of the Sea." That is what Mr. Wilson is.

Missouri has long been considered the mule State, but the census bureau reports that Texas has more mules than Missouri. One-seventh of all the mules in the United States are in Texas.

Discoveries of nitrate of potash—crude saltpeter—are reported in Nevada and Texas. It is stated that an immense deposit, running nearly 90 per cent of pure potash, has been discovered in Nevada. It is also stated that the government will reserve this deposit. Germany is at present the chief source of this country's supply of nitrate of potash; and the restrictions which the German government has placed on exportation has admonished our government as to the necessity for developing a supply. Potash is used for making gunpowder, for which purpose it is indispensable, and it is also extensively used in the manufacture of fertilizer. If there is any truth in the reported discoveries the United States will henceforth be independent of all other countries so far as nitrate of potash is concerned.

ARE DISEASES INCREASING?

There can be no question that the prevalence of certain diseases has increased during the last half-century. Conspicuous among these are diabetes and nervous diseases, these being due largely to the mental stress of a harder struggle for existence.

The increased consumption of alcohol and the free use of narcotics are also responsible for many morbid conditions unknown to our harder forbears. But, in comparing the present prevalence of diseases with that of the past, there are several factors for which due allowance is often not made.

One of these factors responsible is that our forefathers died, as a rule, at a considerably younger age than their descendants; if they did not perish by the sword, they were mowed down from time to time by the plague or various devastating epidemics. In this way they escaped many of the diseases, not only of old age, but of advanced middle life. Again, it must not be forgotten that each generation represented to a much larger extent than is now the case the survival of the fittest. Many of the weaklings died in childhood.

The triumph of modern hygiene is that it has preserved a large proportion of these lives; on this we may fairly pride ourselves from the humanitarian point of view; but we must not forget that it has the serious drawback of lowering the general standard of health and of sapping the vigor of the race.—The American Journal of Clinical Medicine.

Longevity of Authors

Does the literary life conduce to longevity? Apparently it does, in women at least, for Londoners have just been celebrating the birthdays of two notable women writers, one of whom is 74 and the other 87.

Miss Braddon is perhaps the more famous. She celebrated her seventy-fourth birthday a few days ago. In private life she is Mrs. John Maxwell, the wife of her publisher, and one of her three sons—William B. Maxwell—is also a novelist of note. Miss Braddon has given up writing now, and devotes her leisure to collecting old silver, curios and bric-a-brac. One of her proudest possessions is the little table at which the great Duke of Wellington wrote his dispatches. Miss Braddon's first popular success was achieved so long ago as 1861, with "Lady Audley's Secret," which has given delight to successive generations of readers, and is still a popular seller.

The other remarkable literary lady is Mrs. Katherine S. Macquoid, who is about to publish her new novel, "Molly Montague's Love Story," at the ripe age of 37, and is hard at work completing another, which will be called "Suzanne." Mrs. Macquoid published her first novel in 1889, and since then she has turned out 50 works of fiction and about a dozen books of travel and children's stories. She is just as keen a worker as ever, and is rather disgusted by the fact that her falling eyesight limits her working hours to those of daylight.

Mrs. Macquoid is the wife of Thomas Robert Macquoid, who at 81 has the distinction of being the oldest working English artist. He is still a regular exhibitor of watercolor and black and white drawings at the London exhibitions and an occasional contributor to the Illustrated papers. One of their sons—Percy Macquoid—is a famous designer and decorator, and another—Gilbert S. Macquoid—has collaborated with his mother in a number of travel books.—New York Press.

WHY THEY WERE THERE

It was the dinner hour and the prison inspectors were hurrying over their official rounds. They asked several questions quickly.

"I am here, gentlemen," explained the pickpocket when the warden turned his back, "as the result of a moment of abstraction."

"And I," observed the incendiary, "because of an unfortunate habit of making light of things."

"The reason I am here," chimed in the forger, "is simply on account of a natural desire to make a name for myself."

"And I," added the burglar, "through nothing but taking advantage of an opening which was offered in a large mercantile establishment."—Tit-Bits.

LA AMITA

THE HUMAN MACHINE

Arnold Bennett, who regards himself as mechanical rather than mortal, coasted down the gang plank of an inbound steamer the other day under his own power and uncrated. Observing the reporters, Arnold shut off his gasoline and permitted the newspaper men to take off his hood and look at his engine. This great intellectual six seemed to be running smoothly in all its parts, and it was the opinion of those present that after a little brushing up from the wear and tear of the long run from London Arnold would be able to grind out a book.

William Dean Howells, who discovered Mark Twain and subsequently recognized in the music from Kipling's "The Bravest Man in the World," has brought Arnold over with the assurance that he is the greatest of the world's new writers. Coming into prominence three years ago with "The Old Wives Tale," this much-heralded Briton has amazed the critics as well with the quantity as the quality of his output. He has submerged Shaw and surpassed Chesterton. No other living author writes so much, nor does any other (see Mr. Howells et al) write as well.

The secret of it Arnold explains in one of his books. He is a human machine. Though looking very much like a human being of the British persuasion, he is, in fact, one with the gas engine and the ingenious device that can set type. When he has an ache there is something wrong with the machinery. When he writes badly he has neglected a part. If all of us seriously regarded ourselves as machines and cared for ourselves as we care for a machine, we have Arnold's word for it that the increase in our efficiency would absolutely amaze us. Moreover, we would find that the fun of taking care of an automobile or a motor boat is as nothing to the fun of taking care of that infinitely more wonderful machine—one's self.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

SUN YAT SEN

No uprising in China against the Manchu dynasty would be complete that did not introduce in the role of chief conspirator Sun Yat Sen, who is said to be in this country. Wherever this mysterious personage has been in the last fifteen years, in Singapore, London, San Francisco or New York, he has been credited with one purpose—that of fostering a revolution in China.

Sun Yat Sen was born at Canton, the son of a native merchant of means. He pursued his medical studies, some accounts say at London, some at Harvard. At any rate, somewhere in his early days the virus of ideas of popular government entered into his blood.

In 1896 he was involved in a plot near Canton to secrete a quantity of arms and ammunition hidden in barrels for use by an organized party of conspirators. The plot was discovered, a number of his accomplices were caught and promptly executed, but Sun Yat Sen eluded capture, with a large reward on his head.

From that time he has been a fitting figure, ever in and out of the light. The Chinese Reform Association, started at San Francisco, owes its origin principally to him. But whenever his presence became known he disappeared. In London in 1898 he was lured by two Chinese officials into the Chinese embassy. He managed to communicate with some of his friends, who informed the British government. It could not enter the sacred precincts of the embassy, but it did finally secure his release after he had represented that he had become a British subject.

Of late years Singapore has been one of Dr. Sun Yat Sen's favorite resorts for disseminating revolutionary doctrines throughout Southern China. Periodically he turned up in the United States. How he secured the necessary funds and how much of an organization he controlled for urging "reforms" in China are secrets of the conspirators' trade.

One thing is clear—Dr. Sun Yat Sen is no passive doctrinaire. He has said the Chinese are lovers of peace, but "there can be no doubt that when the time comes, enough of them will be found to be ready for the danger of blood-sacrifice if it is necessary." The events of the last few days with which his name is associated prove the truth of his words.—New York World.

MAKING PAPER BOXES

A thousand machines of many types and sizes and designed for many purposes are used today in the manufacture of paper boxes. This assortment of machines is absolutely necessary, for the number of styles of cardboard boxes used for packing all sorts of articles is without limit.

According to the Edison Monthly one industry alone, the making of pens, pencils and erasers, requires boxes of 4000 different sizes and shapes.

Paper-box making, one of the new but very important industries of this country, has made its greatest progress during the last half-century, and particularly within the last twenty years, after modern machinery had been introduced. The business has assumed wonderful proportions in New York City, where the capital investment exceeds $5,000,000.

One hundred years ago there was no such thing as a paper box. The container of those days consisted of nothing more than a heavy sheet of paper wrapped around the article to be carried. In time some progressive person conceived the idea of cutting part way through the paper in order to make it fold more readily. With this four-sided wrapper it became the custom to tuck the loose ends in to prevent the contents slipping out.

From this was evolved the idea of scoring the paper so both the sides and ends folded up and then gluing the ends together. That was the way the first paper boxes were made, and it was years before any marked improvement was made. In those days a knife, a pair of shears, a kettle of paste and a straight edge, with a supply of boxboard, were sufficient equipment to start a man in business.

OAKLANDER DESIGNS STATUE TO COMMEMORATE THE FAIR

Design for statue in Lincoln Park, San Francisco, commemorating opening of Panama-Pacific Exposition. Submitted by Joseph A. Sylvia of Oakland.

Joseph A. Sylvia of this city has submitted to the board of architects of the Panama-Pacific exposition a design for a statue, three hundred feet in height, to be erected in Lincoln park to commemorate the exposition and stand as a lasting monument. It will correspond in character to the statue of Liberty, which stands on Bedloe's island in New York harbor.

A large number of designs have been submitted to the directors and it is expected that a selection will be made in the near future and work commenced on the foundation. The design submitted by Sylvia calls for a monument, the interior of which may be used as an exhibit room for California products. The pedestal is topped by a globe and is surmounted by a great figure blowing a welcoming horn.

Above the main entrance in a niche a figure of St. Francis poses and on each of the other three sides there are the figures of General Fremont, Father Serra and Balboa. The steps leading to the entrance are twenty feet high. The pedestal is 100 feet, the globe sixty feet and the figure on top 120 feet high, making a total height of 300 feet. The statue of Liberty is 306 feet.

Sylvia, the designer, lives at 1414 Franklin street and has devoted considerable time to studying monumental features. His work has met with favor with the architectural board, but as yet no definite selection has been made.

'WOMEN UNFIT TO DO ANYTHING'

"Lack Energy, Can't Cook or Sew and Don't Know Enough to Vote."

CHICAGO, Nov. 21. — "A pretty figure and a big hat."

This is the definition for the modern woman given by the Rev. Joseph Milburn, pastor of Plymouth Congregational Church. It required considerable temerity on the part of Rev. Milburn to say this, and several other things, about women where he did, but he came through it safely. He was the speaker before a secret organization of women at their "education day" celebration.

"Modern women lack energy and have no time for anything except bridge and theater parties," he said, "where they have an opportunity to show off their new clothes. They can't cook and as for making a bed—well, it's only a few women who know enough to tuck the clothes in at the side. A pretty figure and a big hat—that is the modern woman."

"The young women of today consider themselves the white of the egg, while the man is the yolk. They are content to cling to him throughout their lives. They can't sew, they can't cook a beef-steak."

"They will be allowed to vote. Women must vote eventually. But she must be educated to it. At present she isn't fit to do anything."

NAVY BALKS AT CUSTOMS DUTIES

Free Entry Sought for Valuable Wireless Telegraph Instrument.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Free entry into this country for experimental purposes is being sought by the navy department for an instrument designed to indicate the direction from which wireless telegraph messages are coming. Although the navy would be willing to pay for a set of these instruments, it has balked at the heavy duty and is now looking to the treasury department for relief.

In time of war, naval officers say, this instrument would be invaluable. Although messages being sent by an enemy would be in code, it is said that it would be impossible to ascertain whether the waves going through the air were from the enemy's vessels, and with the indicator pointing the direction, it would be comparatively easy to locate a hostile fleet.

FARMER THIRSTS FOR KNOWLEDGE

States Unable to Supply the Demand for Agricultural Information.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Department of Agriculture, during the last year, in conjunction with farmers' institutions, operated seventy-one instruction trains, covering more than 40,000 miles, according to a statement made today by Secretary Wilson.

More than 12,000 farm associations have been established in the several states, representing a membership of more than 240,000. In 1909, the gross income of these associations was $6,500,000 and the amount paid in premiums was more than $2,500,000. The attendance for the year was between 15,000,000 and 16,000,000.

In speaking of the results and effects of this work, Secretary Wilson said:

"The awakening of the people to the value of agricultural instruction and to the possibilities of usefulness through extension teaching has created a demand for this instruction far beyond the powers of the states to supply."

For coughing, dryness and tickling in the throat hoarseness and all coughs and colds, take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Contains no opiates.

S. P. CHIEF WILL REORGANIZE CO.

Arrives in San Francisco Tomorrow for That Purpose.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Judge Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the executive committee of the Hartman lines, will arrive in San Francisco early tomorrow morning, accompanied by President William Sproule and Vice-President E. E. Calvin of the Southern Pacific Company, and will at once plunge into the work of attending to final details in connection with the re-organization of the Southern Pacific Company and the dissolution of all agreements which the Southern Pacific Company, since the late Edward H. Harriman assumed the control of the Harriman roads, has had with the Union Pacific, Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company and Oregon Short Line.

Judge Lovett was met in Portland Saturday by Sproule and Calvin, and they left there last night for San Francisco, intending to stop off in Ashland, Or., for a brief while today. Judge Lovett is taking advantage of the trip to thoroughly inspect the line along which he is traveling.

It is not improbable that he will remain in San Francisco until Sunday.

FARMER SHOT WHILE RIDING WITH WIFE

FRESNO, Nov. 21.—Although he did not hear a shot fired, Andrew Alonzo, a rancher living near Oroville, today fell from the seat of his wagon to the ground, shot in the side, while driving from Centerville to Boblin, in the foothills of this county. Neither did his wife, who was seated beside him, hear any shot.

A passing farmer examined Alonzo and found that a .22-caliber bullet had entered the victim's left side. The wound is expected to prove fatal, as Alonzo is in a precarious condition.

KILLS THE DANDRUFF GERM

Stops Falling Hair—Others Imitate and Make Similar Claims, But the Genuine and Original Dandruff Germ Destroyer is Newbro's Herpicide.

The discovery of the dandruff germ as the cause of all hair troubles is not a recent event. Prof. Unna gave the germ theory to the world in 1887 and two years later Sabouraud by his experiments with a rabbit proved beyond a doubt the actual existence of this germ.

On the heels of this establishment of the germ theory came the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. This was the first and only remedy for the destruction of the dandruff germ.

There have been other preparations alleged to kill this germ, stop falling hair and itching of the scalp. But Newbro's Herpicide really does these things. For this reason it has long been known as the original remedy and the only one that is genuine.

Don't be fooled by preparations which are trading upon the marvelous success of Herpicide. Remember you take no chances with Newbro's Herpicide. It is absolutely guaranteed.

For sale by all druggists. Applications at good barber shops. The Herpicide Company, of Detroit, Mich., Dept. R., will send a sample bottle and booklet upon receipt of 10c in postage.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 21.—The appeal of Dr. W. P. Burke of the Burke sanitarium, convicted on a charge of dynamiting the tent which Lu Elita Smith was occupying as a patient of his sanitarium, near Santa Rosa, was before the Third District Court of Appeals yesterday for argument. Burke appealed from the judgment sentencing him to ten years in San Quentin state prison. The morning session of the court was taken up by arguments made by Judge Cooper, counsel for Burke.

(By LEO LEVY.)

Like the street gamin, "Bright Eyes" was born wrong and never given a chance. Handicapped by an opening act that is as heavy as a rolling stone and not half as active, it gathers no moose to speak of. Once in a while there's a clump that sticks. Cecil Lean's satirical fragment, that gives you the average pastor as others see him, is a real joy and the first bright spot. There is also a chorus of more or less beauty, seemingly unending and well-attired. Among the praiseworthy persons and things present is Miss Florence Holbrook, a clever being who seems to realize the handicaps of the piece and falls to shake them off. A first-act finale that is a thing of beauty and an example of what "Bright Eyes" would have been had its authors given the stage-builders half a chance, brings the dull first third to glorious close. Cecelia Renard also grows in Chanticleer number, and the crowd is realistic enough to bring the sun up on a gray evening. "He's a Fan, Fan, Fan," as sung by Lean, followed by a baseball game that is a musical comedy big league affair, comes on the end of the first act that leaves you happy when the final curtain falls and serves to blot out the remembrance of earlier things that were not so good.

NOT THEIR FAULT.

It is not Cecil Lean's fault that the first act of "Bright Eyes" needs glasses. Highly successful at restoring vigor to tired musical comedies, they waste much strength on this. Dickson, Hauerbach and Hoschna, responsible for "Three Twins," also ground out the third act of which we write. It would appear that they figured on the magic of their names and the inventive powers of Lean and Holbrook to do the rest. Hoschna's music sometimes approaches brilliancy, despite Hauerbach's lyrics. The song "For You, Bright Eyes," though syrupy, has a melodious wall to it that gets into the blood and tingles. "Cheer Up, My Honey," not enthusiastically tuneful, is worth more than a casual hearing. Lean and Holbrook's "Punch" number approaches the remainder of those from the pen and typewriter of Hoschna and Hauerbach.

THREAD OF A PLOT.

There is a thread of a plot that holds together the various bits of vaudeville distributed liberally throughout the remainder of the show. That Dorothy Maryland and Tom Genowin, members of a musical comedy company, portrayed by Miss Holbrook and Lean, having incurred the wrath of the manager of Morality Theater, are trying to escape and are "Unknown to Tom," his wife enlists the aid of Mr. Hunter-Chase in producing a play that Tom has written. Genowin likewise wins the good will and finances of Mrs. Hunter-Chase for the same purpose. Hans is going into play your imagination and you will see that various mistakes may happen, that jealousy and other complications may ensue. Which they do, in quantities more or less generous.

"Bright Eyes" has as its chief handicap act one. "The setting is the stage of Morality Theater. There is nothing so depressing as the bare stage of any theater, unless it is the stone walls of a prison, from the inside. As a consequence neither the brilliancy of Lean and Holbrook, nor the brightness of a large chorus, mostly girls and gorgeously arrayed, can lighten the deadly dull gray that act one assumes early in the evening. And with a slow start "Bright Eyes" is forced to gather momentum. Which it does, but never approaches the speed limit.

LEAN SIZZLES.
Cecil Lean sizzles with good humor. That nobody loves the chunky individual is an American truism. Fairly stout, Lean is worshiped by those out in front. He is a happy comedian who never strains to make his point. His mimicry is touched with satire and is decidedly more than caricature.

Much good money has been spent on "Bright Eyes" and no effort spared to bring out what good is in it and hide what is not. The scenery is new, the costumes well cared for, staging is faultless, chorus drilled to a nicety, principals average fairly high for musical comedy.

These things, then, be worth while. These and Cecil Lean, Miss Holbrook, "For You, Bright Eyes," Lean's baseball game, the end of not one and Miss Renard's covey.

WINS RACE FROM FIRE FOR ANOTHER'S LIFE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—Lying in a deep canyon, surrounded in a tangled mass of dry sagebrush by a ten-foot wall of roaring flames, William Harshburger, a welder on the Palo Verde ranch, who had collapsed from exertion, was heroically rescued yesterday by Harold Thorsen, a ranchman. Thorsen, a giant in strength, rushed through the fire, picked up Harshburger and carried him nearly half a mile to the junction of the canyon with another, racing for the life of his burden and his own.

Often the flames were within twenty feet of him, and once they came so close that both men were blistered. Harshburger begged his rescuer to drop him and save himself, as it seemed both must surely perish, but Thorsen won the awful struggle.

BRAKEMAN MURDERED BY MEXICAN GAMBLER

YREKA, Nov. 21.—A young Mexican professional gambler, known as "Panama Kid," killed William P. Layton, a railroad brakeman, in the lumbering town of Weed yesterday. The shooting was unprovoked, the Mexican calling Layton into a poolroom where they had played cards earlier in the day and then commenced to fire at him.

The third bullet struck Layton in the forehead and he dropped dead. The Mexican was brought to the county jail here. Layton was 40 years of age and leaves a widow and four children. "Panama Kid" came to Weed less than a week ago.

SURGEON GENERAL WYMAN SUCCEUMBS

Head of Health and Marine Hospital Service Dies After Long Illness.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Walter Wyman, surgeon-general of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, died at Providence Hospital at 12:20 o'clock this morning, after an illness of several months.

The direct cause of Dr. Wyman's death was a carbuncle, which developed four weeks ago, after he had been in poor health for several months. He was taken to the hospital at that time and for a while appeared to improve rapidly. Until last Thursday his condition was not considered critical, but on that day there was a decided turn for the worse. Yesterday hope was abandoned. The end came quite suddenly this morning. Frank Wyman of St. Louis, a brother of the surgeon general, who arrived here ten days ago, was at the bedside.

The body will be taken to St. Louis and the funeral probably will be held there Thursday.

Dr. Wyman was unmarried. He was born in St. Louis in 1848 and received degrees from several universities and medical schools. He had been in the Marine Hospital service since 1876, serving at St. Louis, Cincinnati, Baltimore, New York and Washington. He was supervising surgeon-general of the Marine Hospital service from 1891 to 1902, and since July 1, 1902, had been surgeon-general of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service.

Always giving special attention to physical conditions affecting merchant marine, Dr. Wyman had been instrumental in having many laws passed for the benefit of the seamen, and had been active in bringing about the establishment of sanatoriums for consumptives and leprosy investigation stations. He was author of numerous pamphlets connected with public health and was a member of leading American and international medical societies.

The surgeon-general is survived by his mother, Mrs. Edward Wyman; three brothers, Henry P. and Frank of St. Louis and Arthur Wyman of Chicago, and one sister, Mrs. Florence Richardson of St. Louis.

ELECTION FRAUDS STIR LOS ANGELES

Officials Wrought Up Over Thousands of Illegal Registrations.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—Though the work has been begun, more than a thousand cases of fraudulent registrations have been unearthed by the citizens' committee experts and Patrolman Barry and his squad of plain clothes officers. The general situation is so serious that the district attorney announces that a special grand jury will be called to investigate the source of the large amount required to finance the illegalities. It develops that men have been brought from every direction within a radius of 100 miles, and in some cases even from other states, and registered. Hundreds of registrations, on the other hand, are purely fictitious, with indefinite descriptions and the address given as general delivery, to afford opportunity for repeat-ers.

In some instances comparisons of the cheap lodging-houses and low-class hotel registers with the lists of voters have disclosed more than 100 in a single precinct registered who are not entitled to vote. How these men ever expected to cast their ballots, the authorities cannot understand. It is believed hundreds of women in these same localities are falsely registered.

The district attorney's present plan is to issue warrants for all persons found illegally registered, and to have plenty of officers at the polling places to arrest them if they appear. Those who can be found are to be arrested immediately. County Clerk J. J. Bellevue, the purged great register now containing the names of 192,170 will show not over 160,000 qualified electors.

YOUTHS BATTLE IN BLOODY DUEL

Quarrel Over Sister of One Results in Serious Injuries to Both.

BISHOP, Nov. 21.—What was at first reported as an accidental shooting but which from later developments appears to have been a bloody duel, occurred yesterday back of the Given's ranch, near the river below Big Pine. The principals being Ralph Andrews, 18, and Steve Martins, 13. Martins is in bed with a wounded right leg, the artery being cut, while Andrews is blind, one eye being entirely shot out and the second in a grave condition. Also Andrews' hands, breast and face are badly riddled with duckshot.

There was bad feelings between Andrews' sister, Mrs. Plamenaz, and Martins, who was interested with Plamenaz in some land. She warned her brother not to go hunting with Martins. When the two hunters reached the river Andrews' gun went off, the charge hitting Martins in the right leg. Martins then turned around and shot Andrews. Holding up both hands to his face, Andrews received the charge of shot from Martins' gun full in the face and hands. Blinded, he appealed to Martins not to kill him, but to help him to town. Martins did carry him as far as the road.

BABE FALLS INTO BOILER.
CHICO, Nov. 21.—The 18-month-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Burke is dead as a result of falling into a boiler or cold water. The mother had left the baby in custody of another child and was across the street at the time of the accident. The babe, in reaching over the top of the boiler, fell in and was drowned.

A HOUSEHOLD MEDICINE

FOR YOUR HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk.

Marvelous as it may seem, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has grown hair on heads that were once bald. Of course, it is understood that in none of these cases were the hair roots dead nor had the scalp taken on a glazed, shiny appearance. When the roots of the hair are entirely dead and the pores of the scalp glazed over, we do not believe that anything can restore their growth.

When Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will do as above stated, it is not strange that we have such great faith in it, and that we claim it will prevent baldness when used in time. It acts scientifically, destroying the germs, which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nourishing them. It is a most pleasant tonic, necessary, is delicately perfumed and will not turn nor permanently stain the hair. We want you to get a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed. If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us and without question or formality we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for it.

We lend our endorsement to Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and sell it on this guarantee, because we believe it is the best hair tonic ever developed. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it only at the Owl Drug Co. stores in Oakland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Portland, Seattle, Spokane.

How to Always Have Soft, Lustrous Hair

"If every woman but knew how easy it is to have a wealth of soft, silken hair of her own—there would be no further use for switches," says Mrs. Mae Martin, writing in the New York Express. "It is the most beautiful of all things," she continues, "which means avoiding head-washes of a harmful nature."

"With ordinary shampoo one can enjoy the delights of a cleansing, soothing and very beneficial shampoo. Just dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready. The hair on the head is not soiled and dandruff, which is the cause of so much trouble, is removed. The hair is made soft and lustrous and takes on a charming softness and lustre that adds greatly to womanly beauty."

The lady, gently strumming the ivory keyboard, little knows the pulling force of the strings she is straining is so great that were it applied between the floor and roof of her house the latter would collapse like a pack of cards; that is to say, if the piano is a good one like those included in the Kohler & Chase Piano and Player-Piano Club, which are constructed of the finest American steel; but they don't pull the roof down, they are not applied that way.

A gentleman who has bought one of the largest estates in Cherryland says: "I bought in Cherryland because here I can save the cost of my children's education. I am selling my property in the city because it offers me no real advantages. Cherryland gives me a man of family many desirable things that are absent in the city."

This gentleman investigated Cherryland thoroughly before he bought. He found that J. J. Smith, director of the State Bank of San Leandro, made $40,000 out of his property in Cherryland, without irrigation, during the past season. (Mr. Smith had 160 acres, and therefore had to do wholesale farming. With a big crew of pickers for his cherry, apricot, plum, prune, peach and other fruit trees, he could not plant between rows in the way that a man would with a small piece of land worked with one or two helpers to its full producing capacity.) The investigator found also that, with the excellent existing schools and churches of all denominations, and the $80,000 high school to be built, his children would have every advantage of moral and academic training close at hand, in addition to the uplifting home influence of a beautiful suburban estate. He found that Cherryland is closer to San Francisco, where he transacts business, than the Marin towns, and that, with 3 lines which now pass through Cherryland—Western Pacific, Southern Pacific and Oakland Traction—it is far more convenient for business. He saw that the community around Hayward was building homes faster than any other section around the Bay, and that when the two new lines are completed (Southern Pacific electric and Key Route) property values will take a big jump, and instead of 500 commuters leaving daily from Hayward there will be 1000 to 2000 in the immediate future.

So he bought a few acres and is now completing, at a cost of $25,000, one of the most artistic homes in Alameda County, using the existing orchards in bearing in a beautiful landscape scheme. Do not fail to come to Cherryland on our special excursion train, with library car, over the Western Pacific next Sunday, November 26. The round trip will cost you nothing.

This will give you a complete understanding of what Cherryland means as a home for you—the pleasant quick trip; the beauty of the grounds when you arrive; the fertility of the soil; the saving in cost of living from the yield of the ground; the obvious certainty of making money on increasing values; the high character of macadamized roads, concrete curbs and gutters, wide parking; the inspiration to beautify your property; the desirable character of the people already located on the land; the convenience of everything you need.

HIGH VOLTAGE IS CAUSE OF DEATH

C. B. Withers Grasps a Live Wire and Is Plunged to Concrete Floor.

While wiping an electrical transformer last night which he believed to be "dead," C. B. Withers, a young electrician employed at the power station of the Great Western Power Company at Fourth avenue and East Thirty-seventh street, received a heavy current of electricity, which precipitated him from the bridge in front of the transformer to the cement pavement of the power house 20 feet below. Withers suffered a fracture of the skull, which resulted almost instantly in his death.

Withers, who was 23 years of age and a married man, has been employed by the company for but a short time. He was sent to do some work in the gallery between the transformers, and mistaking a live one for one from which the current had been shut off, had several thousand volts of electricity short-circuited through his body. The shock threw him backward and he fell head foremost to the concrete floor below.

The young man was recently married and resided at 723 Fifty-fourth street. Mrs. Withers was notified of the accident and is prostrated with grief at her home. The body was removed to the morgue and an inquest will be held.

GABY FLEES IN FEAR OF STRENUOUS COLLEGIANS

"Young Animals" Too Much for French Actress and She's Going Home.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—With big circles under her pretty eyes, due to the excitement and shock of a "raid" by Yale students on the stage at New Haven, where she was playing Saturday night, Gaby Desseaux declared she was going right home and gave her impression of the American college man whom she had met in large numbers for the first time on that exciting occasion.

"He is a young animal."

"He is a six-year-old in his twenties."

"He is a new sort of human creature."

"He turned me into a college yell."

"He made me want my mother."

"I am going home," she continued in a tired little voice. "I am homesick. I want to see my mother. It is so different over here and I want to go to Paris. Mr. Schubert wants me to go to the West—to California—but I shall not go far away. It is too long and too tiresome to travel, and I don't like America so very much. The food is good, but I am homesick."

"You see, I wasn't expecting that it was possible for them to take such liberties in a theater. They climbed upon the stage and surrounded me and ever tried to take souvenirs from me. The reason why a good many people have broken in the mad rush about me, I was terribly frightened."

"Well, it did seem strange that those great, broad-shouldered young men could act like so many children and young animals. They turned me into a college yell, with shouts in unison which grew louder and louder. 'We want Gaby; we want Gaby!'"

Bernhardt to Wed

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The Paris correspondent of the London Standard says this morning that Mrs. Sarah Bernhardt and Lou Tellegen, a Flemish actor, who is a member of her company soon will be married.

Tellegen is 28 years old. He was a subordinate member of her company during her tour in London last year. Mrs. Bernhardt, who is now in the sixty-seventh year of her perpetual youth, has long been a widow, and was married only a short time.

In 1882 she and Jacques Damala, a Greek actor in her company in London, were married, but she soon divorced him. Damala died in 1889.

The famous actress is already a great-grandmother. She is also blessed with a number of grandchildren. Two years ago Edige Gros of Paris married Mlle. Simone Maurice Bernhardt, the daughter of her son Maurice.

Rose Decides Fate

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—Wilmet Haase, 14 years old, an inmate of the Strickland home for boys, a semi-charitable institution, committed suicide yesterday because of the unrequited love of Irene Burnett, aged 17. Miss Burnett was employed as a domestic at the home. She had more than two dozen suitors among the young boys.

Haase was not her choice, and when she broke an engagement with him to go to a moving picture theater, with another he became despondent. When it was seen that nearly all the boys were becoming madly infatuated with Miss Burnett, the daughter of the home, she got her position with a private family.

Wilmet, before ending his life, tried the rose petal test. "She loves me, she loves me not." The last petal denying his hopes, he walked to the medicine cupboard, and taking a bottle of carbolic acid from the shelf, drank two ounces.

HAMMOND HITS BACK AT JACOB H. SCHIFF

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—John Hays Hammond, whom Jacob H. Schiff has indirectly accused of having used influence with President Taft on the Jewish passport question, made public today the following cablegram from M. Wilentz, the Russian financial agent, now in London:

"Passport question was not discussed by us in Russia. Question came up after your departure and nobody ever solicited your influence in this matter."

Wilentz came here about a year ago to interest American manufacturers in the Russian market.

Bad Habits Can Be Broken

By LILLIAN RUSSELL

(Copyright: 1911: By Lillian Russell.)

A BRILLIANT woman who has lately been writing an every-day thought for the newspapers voiced one on habit the other day. She says: "An oppressive sense of unchangeableness, of bondage, is associated with the thought of habit. The effect of our educational effort is to teach that habit, once formed, it is irremovable ground. The parent, the teacher, the friend in the instruction of youth constantly dwell on the danger of bad habits and very little, if at all, on the power of correcting habit."

Habit is not irremovable ground, but we make a mistake in thinking that the habit that has taken years to form can be broken immediately. For example, the woman who has allowed herself to become settled physically and mentally would find it impossible at once to bring up her mind and her body to alertness and enthusiasm. One hears so often even in these days of straight-front corsets, "I have such a high abdomen."

There is no more reason for a woman having a "high abdomen" than there is for her having a high bridge to her nose. A "high abdomen" means only that through indolence and neglect a woman is standing on her heels instead of the balls of her feet, which is contrary to all nature's laws, and which throws every internal organ out of equilibrium and makes the soft walls of her abdomen carry their weight instead of the bony structure which nature has made for that purpose.

This habit is one of the most prevalent among women of comfortable circumstances and it is one of the hardest to overcome, simply because it is due to slothfulness of the mind. I have never yet seen a woman with a figure of this kind who was not more or less indolent, not only in her action, but in her thought. She will inveigh long hours against her ugly figure, but she is too lazy to take the trouble to rectify its bad lines. Remember, it is not as easy to break a bad habit as to break a perfectly good heart.

B. M.—Plain yellow vaseline is excellent for increasing the growth of the eyebrows. Apply the vaseline with a small brush, but be careful not to get any into the eye, as oil of any kind irritates it. Send me a self-addressed stamped envelope and I shall be glad to send you a French tonic for eyebrows and lashes.

PEGGY—Have you tried deep breathing? This is excellent for enlarging the bust. Deep breathing should be practiced constantly. It will keep you healthy. The reason why a good many people have severe colds during the winter is because they do not practice deep breathing. Send me a self-addressed stamped envelope and I shall send you complete instructions for deep breathing, and also a harmless remedy by which a number of my friends develop their busts.

A CONSTANT READER—The electric needle is the only safe and

The peroxide will bleach the hair so that it will become less noticeable, and the ammonia will gradually kill the roots. I shall send you a dietary for reducing flesh if you will send me a self-addressed stamped envelope.

HELEN B.—You can buy mascara at any drug store. Get it as near the shade of your hair as possible or a little darker.

A. R.—Plain table salt sometimes removes a wart. Moisten the wart with water and rub table salt into it. Do this several times a day. Have your druggist put up one dram salicylic acid, and one ounce of colloid in a bottle with a small brush run through the cork. Apply this several times a day, but be exceedingly careful not to get any of the mixture on the surrounding skin.

ANNE—To keep the hair light it must be washed at least every two weeks. Be sure and rinse all the soap out of it, for there is nothing that will spoil the luster of the hair as soap if allowed to remain. Rinse the hair thoroughly, adding to the last rinsing water a tablespoonful of peroxide of hydrogen. Send me a self-addressed stamped envelope and I shall send you an excellent shampoo for keeping the hair light, and also a good cold cream and the green soap treatment for blackheads.

K. S.—Bathe the nose daily in alcohol. Avoid all rich, spicy foods, greasy meats, liquors if you take them, tea and coffee, and sudden changes in temperature. In my opinion there is always some internal cause for dark circles under the eye. Sometimes it is hereditary, but is sometimes caused from lack of sleep, or overstraining the eyes by prolonged study. The external treatment is sometimes effective, but cannot be permanent while the cause lasts. Bathe the eyes in cold water, frequently using friction. Massage under the eyes gently, being careful not to press on the eyeball with a good skin food. If you care for it send me a self-addressed stamped envelope and I shall send you an excellent eye wash and formula for skin food.

MRS. L. L. M.—I advise you to go to some reliable optician. Your eye trouble probably appears more exaggerated to you than to any one else. I would not worry about it.

Many of her poetic effusions have frequently appeared in the Aegis, the official paper of the school. GREY TO DISCLOSE FOREIGN RELATIONS

LONDON, Nov. 21.—That England was on the point of going to war with Germany in support of France in the Moroccan trouble being now generally admitted, and it being generally known now that the government apparently had consented to Russia's advance on Persia, criticism has arisen over the secrecy with which the nation's foreign affairs are conducted, particularly since Sir Edward Grey became foreign secretary. Sir Edward has promised to make a statement on November 27 a statement of the nation's foreign relations. The agitation crystallized into a demand that both Parliament and the country immediately should be given explicit information regarding the government's recent foreign dealings. The revelation in the German Reichstag of the intensity of Germany's feeling against England was a surprise.

BOYS CLEAR SCHOOL YARD OF ITS ROCKS

With pick and shovel the boys of the Franklin Grammar School recently removed the rocks and debris from the yard. It was the first time in the history of the school that the boys assumed the role of laborers. The work commenced at 8:30 on the morning of November 10 and continued until 9 o'clock, when they resumed their studies.

Every boy in the school picked up at least 10 rocks. The efforts were prompted by a feeling of school spirit and loyalty. They worked enthusiastically and were complimented upon their successful work by J. F. Chandler, principal of the school.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—A caustic criticism of President Taft was delivered by E. O. Fowler, president of the National League for Medical Freedom before the state delegates of the first national convention of the order, which will begin a nation-wide fight against the Owen's bill providing for a national board of health, which they say will discriminate against all but allopathic doctors. President Taft was attacked because of an order prohibiting the practice of medicine, surgery, pharmacy or dentistry in the Panama canal zone without securing a license from the board of health of the canal zone.

ACCUSING FINGER IS POINTED AT MOORE

MRS. BENTZEN IS RECALLED TO STAND IN SENSATIONAL CASE

SPIRITUALIST COMFORTED BY MANY

Faithful Followers of H. Robt. Moore Crowd the County Courtroom.

Accuser Again Tells How She Gave Up Money to Head of Cult.

H. Robert Moore's empiric "fourth dimension" encompassed the criminal department of the Superior Court again today. The head of the spiritualist cult in Oakland, as he sat beside his counsel listening to the story of how he is alleged to have swindled Mr. and Mrs. Bentzen out of $700 by means of mediumistic manifestation, was surrounded by a number of his followers.

WOMAN RECALLED.

Mrs. Bentzen was recalled to the witness stand by the prosecution at the opening of the morning session and gave commonplace testimony about letters and telegrams she and her husband received from Moore, operating under the name of Sinclair, from Salt Lake City and Boston, after his alleged flight with the money. She was then turned over to Attorney McDonough for cross-examination, and, led by his interrogations, she went to the very depths of seances as conducted by Moore and his high priests. Mrs. Bentzen always referred to Moore as "Sinclair," because it was by that name that she and her husband knew him best. Mrs. Bentzen was very emphatic about the main points her testimony developed against Moore. She said she bore no particular ill-will against him, but she honestly thought him innocent of the wrong he had done her and she would not want him imprisoned.

"I know he has robbed us," declared Mrs. Bentzen, thrusting her finger at Attorney McDonough, to emphasize her statement, "and therefore he ought to suffer."

LIGHT ON SEANCE.

Mrs. Bentzen threw additional light upon the seance at which it is alleged in the grand jury indictment Moore took the $700. She said that her husband had the gold in his possession and in a bureau drawer at their home fully ten days before Moore got hold of it, "because the weather was stormy and the spirits would not work." "It was raining," she declared, "and that aside from the scheme to raise money for a magnificent temple in the Santa Cruz mountains, dedicated to the spirits, Moore told both her and Bentzen that with the money they gave him, he would be able to produce the immense gem to which Moore produced at the eventful "sitting" with the compliments of the spirits, she said. She was overjoyed at what he said. She was overjoyed at the honor that had been accorded to her and said that at that moment of mad exuberance would have given a billion dollars to Moore if she had the money.

"But the diamond was glass," sighed Mrs. Bentzen.

BORROWED MONEY.

Mrs. Bentzen was asked if she had not borrowed money from a roomer in the home and Moore left the city, and she replied in the affirmative. She said the loss of her money made the borrow necessary. She was asked if she had not told Mrs. Price, a friend, that the money Moore got was not stolen from their home, and she replied "Yes."

"What I did say to Mrs. Price was that our money was all gone," explained the witness.

"Gone where?" asked Attorney McDonough.

"Into Sinclair's 'fourth dimension,'" replied Mrs. Bentzen, with a cunning smile. The witness also said that a woman friend told her that Mrs. Sinclair, wife of the medium, remarked to her, "Papa (meaning Moore) has $700 of the Bentzens' money and I'm going to have some of it or know the reason why." Moore and her friend both told Mrs. Bentzen, she testified, to say nothing about the money to anybody, and the woman offered to have the $700 refunded to the Bentzens if they would not prosecute Moore.

H. ROBERT MOORE, also known to the police as H. Robert Sinclair, on trial for alleged swindle.

"She warned me that if we didn't take the money and keep our mouths shut about the transaction the influence of the spirits would be destroyed, and for this both Mr. Bentzen and I would suffer."

CROWN RECALLED.

Carrying the witness back to the seance where the two crowns were used, Attorney McDonough asked Mrs. Bentzen if the diadem placed upon her head was heavy.

"I didn't feel its weight," replied Mrs. Bentzen, "because I had my hair all pulled up."

Mrs. Bentzen repeated in detail the facts about the seance. She said there was a flashlight in Moore's hand most of the time, and that he used it to excellent advantage when weird and uncanny effects were desired.

"When our money disappeared," said the witness, "I lost all faith in spiritualism, which I had followed religiously for many years. Dr. Holliday was the accused man's trumpet guide at this seance, and the trumpet lay most of the time at the feet of Sinclair."

Chief Deputy District Attorney Carey at this juncture disappeared from the courtroom and returned a couple of minutes later with the trumpet. It was a tin affair a yard long and 5 inches in diameter.

"Moore took the money while pretending to be in a trance," Mrs. Bentzen told the jury. "Ah," said he, "I see you have brought the gold."

The witness told about Moore's alleged promise to search for hidden wealth for the Bentzens and reiterated her disgust for the manner in which the medium is alleged to have played upon her and her husband's credulity to get possession of their savings.

SLEUTH ON STAND.

Detective St. Clair Hodgkins followed Mrs. Bentzen on the witness stand. He identified letters and telegrams alleged to have been received by the Bentzens from Moore before he left Oakland. One of the letters was read by the prosecutor. It was dated at Salt Lake City and recited that Moore was about to undertake a fifty-mile journey into the wilds of Utah to establish his point of hidden wealth for the Bentzens. The letter stated that the writer would risk his life, buffet the torments and dangers of the wilderness, but that, like a true soldier, he would do his work.

It was announced this forenoon by Attorney McDonough that Moore will take the stand in his own defense. He will offer to make mediumistic demonstrations to the judge and jury in open court and try to prove that the Bentzens' money was given to him as leader of the cult to further the cause of spiritualism.

DAMAGING TESTIMONY.

The testimony of Walter Bentzen, principal complaining witness against Alchemist Moore, and that of Lucinda Bentzen, his wife, was what the district attorney's office states is the unmasking of Moore. Bentzen told from the witness stand one of the most unusual and extraordinary stories heard in the local court, being sustained in all the essential features of his remarkable narrative by his wife. At the time Moore is said to have "flashed" the Bentzens out of $700, their entire savings, with the exception of about $1.80, Mrs. Bentzen had been a devout spiritualist for more than a year and had recently prevailed upon Bentzen to join her in the belief. The couple had equipped their humble home with all the paraphernalia necessary for successful professional seances, including the large black curtain and cabinet, and there they and their spiritualist friends sat night after night in "circles." Occasionally Moore honored the Bentzens and their friends by being present, and while both Bentzen and his wife declared to the jurors that at none of these "sittings" were they ever brought into immediate contact with the invoked spirits, each of them admitted upon cross-examination that at the time Moore's influence was so strong over them that they imagined they saw, heard and conversed with departed souls.

"LIKE BEGETS LIKE."

The testimony given by Bentzen and his wife was a story something like this:

When they first formed the professional acquaintance of Moore by joining his "development" or "manifestation" class the medium began by instilling into their minds the axiom that "like begets like," gold was attracted by gold, rubies by rubies and diamonds by diamonds. Moore explained to his eager students that the fundamental principle of the psychic phenomena he expounded, while marvelous to the untutored and uninitiated, was very simple for those who possessed of the key to the celestial door that opened into the kingdom of the departed spirits.

As the education of the Bentzens in spiritualism progressed, Moore, the husband and wife testified, proposed to them a plan to build a temple dedicated to mysticism in the heart of the Santa Cruz mountains. The medium's plan was to have the most magnificent shrine for the invocation of the spirits that was ever dedicated to any fantastic and weird religion, and having learned that in a bank down town the Bentzens had a comfortable little "nest egg" stowed away, he proposed that they contribute $700 for "attraction purposes"—that is, for the purpose of establishing a psychic chain that would compel spiritualists the world over to pour their wealth into the building fund. Moore had made a diamond grow as large as a door-knob and a gold nugget assume the proportions of a large chunk of coal before the Bentzens and the Bentzens believed that a wizard who could amass wealth in gems and precious metal with such easy grace certainly would be able to complete the chain for the temple building fund. The Bentzens did not inform the jury as to the excited positions they were to occupy in connection with the mountain temple, but they did say that Moore assured them that if they would put up the $700 he would reward them with a few diamonds as large as door-knobs and a few nuggets the size of chunks of coal.

DRAWS OUT MONEY.

Bentzen and his wife finally decided to "take a flyer" at Moore's alleged proposition. Bentzen went to the bank one day and drew out all the money with the exception of about $1.80. He carried it around in his outer coat pocket for several days looking for Moore, but could not find him. Then he put the money in a bureau drawer at home, where it remained several days more. Finally Bentzen got in touch with Moore, he says, and a meeting was arranged. He and his wife kept the engagement promptly to the minute and Moore was there. The money passed into the medium's possession.

"I counted out thirty-five $20 gold pieces upon the table and Moore gathered them in," Bentzen told the jury. "First he turned off the lights and set a phonograph playing soft, sweet music. Then he arranged some black curtains around a cabinet and said he was going into a trance. He entered the cabinet and my wife and I watched. Pretty soon he issued forth with arm outstretched, head set and eyes staring straight ahead. He

Persons Dripping From Lake Washington Are Warned of Their Danger.

SEATTLE, Nov. 21.—With the rivers of Western Washington slowly falling and prospects bright for the early resumption of railroad service across the Cascade mountains, interest was centered today on Seattle, where the water famine in the principal residence districts is becoming alarming. The city had used 40,000,000 of the 100,000,000 gallons of water stored in the service reservoirs when the Cedar river pipe lines broke suddenly, cutting off the source of supply.

The remaining supply, it is estimated, will last until Thursday, while the pipes cannot be repaired before Saturday night. The problem that confronts the city is to get water to the great residence portion of the city that has been without service since the pipe line broke.

These are the highways, with which the three links in the fair chain eye to be joined, and the strip of land which is to connect Lincoln and Golden Gate parks. Property owners in the Richmond District from which this connecting land must be taken are on the anxious seat as to how the selection will affect the value of their property.

EL PASO, Nov. 21.—Texas Rangers narrowly missed today the capture of eight covered wagons, thought to contain contraband revolutionary supplies. The wagons were seen crossing the Rio Grande, which is not a part of entry, for which reason the authorities are convinced that the wagons were carrying legitimate freight. The rangers arrived just in time to see the last of the freighters draw up on the Mexican bank of the Rio Grande.

PUPILS OF HIGH SCHOOL TO TAKE PART IN A PLAY

KATHERINE CRELLIN (top) L. STEPHENS (center) ETTA SCHROCK (lower)

Elaborate preparations are being made by the high senior class of the Oakland high school for the production of "Bachelor Hall," a three act comedy, which will be presented in the high school gymnasium on the evening of Tuesday, December 5. The entire cast is composed of members of the graduating class, and the young thespians are already showing the results of several weeks rehearsing.

The members of the cast were selected by tryouts from a graduating class of almost a hundred students, and are being coached by Miss Soule, of the English department of the Oakland high school. This is the first time in several years that the senior farce has been presented in the high school gymnasium, being presented in the local play houses. Recently, however, the largest stage in the gymnasium has been refitted and as the hall will seat more than ten people it will be a more comfortable and less expensive place to put on a play.

IN GOOD HANDS. Les Stephens, a prominent member of the graduating class, is managing the farce, and Ellery Stone, the amateur wireless expert, is stage manager. Harry Ames, a popular member of the student body, has charge of the financial part of it and announces that many tickets have already been disposed of.

Frank Marvin, president of the Oakland high school senate, and Marion Hook will appear in the leading roles. The cast for "Bachelor Hall" is as follows: The Hon. Geoffrey Myrleton, Frank Marvin, Silas Jervis, Leland Taylor, Elsha Bassett, William Rea, Edna Meredith, Carol Wright, Pinkerton Case, Archie Macdowell, Peter Lee, Roy Anderson, Jasper, Harold Wadsworth, O'Rourke, Miss Marion Hook, Betty Vance, Katherine Crellin, Fred Bassett, Etta Schrock, Claire, and Etta Schrock.

CLASS EXERCISES. The graduation exercises of the class of December 11, will be held in Chabot hall on the evening of December 8. Owing to the small size of the hall and the opposition of the board of education to the holding of the exercises in the hall, the graduates, their getting a larger one, each member of the class will all be allowed six bids to give their relations and friends where formally twelve were allowed to each graduate.

Ellery Stone will be class valedictorian at the graduation exercises and will speak for the boys. Miss Willayne Dickinson will deliver an address in behalf of the girls.

FROZEN OUT BY ROCKEFELLER HE SAYS

Former Railroad Official Declares He Was Forced to Sell His Stock.

Property Manipulated So That Its Value Leaped From One to $700,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The process by which John D. Rockefeller gained control of the valuable Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad through a loan of $1,000,000, the way in which the value of the railroad property is said to have been "padded" to make it appear worth more than $700,000,000 and how the road is now earning more than $200 a share in dividends, were told to the Stanley Steel Trust investigating committee today by Charles H. Martz, formerly chief engineer of the road.

Martz, with some bitterness, told how he once owned forty-nine shares of the stock in the road but had to sell it to the Rockefeller interests for $30 a share in order, it was claimed, to make his job secure.

Alfred Merritt of Duluth, first president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, testified that he and his associates turned over to John D. Rockefeller in 1893 property in the Missabe ore regions as collateral for the loan of $1,000,000. That they lost later on call and the property, Merritt declared, is practically the same as that now owned by the United States Steel Corporation and valued, according to recent estimates of Charles M. Schwab, at $700,000,000.

40-FOOT PILES TO TAP HARDPAN

City Is Forced to $5000 Extra Expense to Secure a Proper Footing.

On the recommendation of City Engineer Perry F. Brown to the city council this morning, the contract with the Merry-Well company was altered in the specifications so as to call for 40-foot sheet piling in place of 26-foot piling for the retaining wall in the levee in the Key Route basin. The change will entail an extra expense to the city estimated at about $5000. The change is necessitated by the depth of the hardpan at the location of the retaining wall.

Oklahoma Congregation Drops to Floor During the Fusillade.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Nov. 21.—As in the days of old, when cowboys shot up the towns for the sport of it, two men shot up to the Presbyterian Church at Parkhill, near here, while the preacher was offering the closing prayers, and fired into the windows. Lights were shot out and bullets rained above the heads of the congregation, which became panic stricken and dropped to the floor for safety.

After a clatter of hoof beats, indicating that the disturbers had gone, the people rushed to their homes, the men securing arms and giving pursuit. The men who fired the shots escaped.

When you are told that some man has made THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS a year, come from a PRIZE MEDAL FARM at Thornton, we are not saying that YOU CAN DO THE SAME IF you are a man of sense and judgment, you realize that the latter statement PROBABLY ISN'T SO.

There is a famous horticulturist in this county, Mr. Paul Rose, who has said to make net profit of $35,000 to $40,000 per year from a 200-acre farm. He is an exceptional man—he is unlikely that YOU could do it or that WE could do it.

YOU CAN DO THE SAME IF you are a man of sense and judgment, you realize that the latter statement PROBABLY ISN'T SO.

What we DO contend is just this: That with a little farm of some of the velvet land in California, situated in the heart of the great fruit and nut neighbors and plenty of water for irrigation, OWNED BY THE LAND, you will be healthier, happier, more prosperous and feel more secure with advancing years than if you stuck to a job in the crowded cities—the kind of a job that sucks your life out and leaves you in the end without provision for your old age.

These PRIZE MEDAL FARMS are only 60 miles from San Francisco, with a rich, warm, sediment soil 20 feet deep, one mile from the W. P. coast, with all land, water, and stock, and have produced 350 sacks of potatoes, 42 sacks of beans, 80 sacks of barley, and can do much better on oranges, lemons and farm garden products. The price is $150 an acre, only $30 cash and balance in four years.

MERZ TO RACE AT MOTORDROME

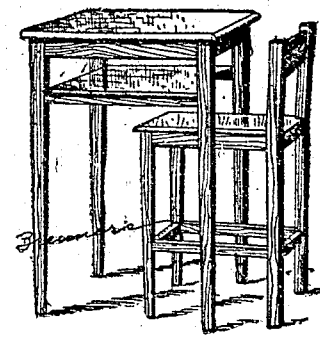

The National "40," which may be seen in competition on the Oakland Motordrome in the near future.

Charles Merz, famous as one of the victorious National drivers and holder of the world's heavy stock car record, having established at Santa Monica last month with a mark of better than seventy-four miles an hour, may be seen in competition here within the next two weeks. Jack Prince is negotiating with Merz and may secure the latter's consent to a match race with Earl Devors in the Buick 48. Devors is best remembered locally as the driver of the National in the automobile dealers' affair at the Motordrome on Memorial day. At that time he drove a new stock car fully equipped and won with ease.

The Buick which could be pitted against the National in case a match is consummated is a record holder in itself with some remarkable victories to its credit. It can circle the Oakland track in miles under forty-six seconds and in a contest with one of the famous Flying Blue Squadron cars would be working at an advantage. Being of the wheel case type the Buick can be held down with greater ease at high speed than could the National.

Champion Wolters was around town for a short time yesterday, very much disappointed because of the showing of his machine the day before, caused entirely by defective spark plugs, he states. It was the first time in his experience that continued trouble forced him out of the running for an entire program. Ray Seymour, the Indian rider, had his machine primed for record work, and were it not for his mixup with Samuelson he might have made it exciting for Armstrong and Balke.

Prince will announce his program for the coming week tomorrow morning.

WOMEN ON JURY
WORRY JUDGESConflict of Opinion Holds Up Lists in Southern Section.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—A conflict of opinion among the superior court judges of Los Angeles regarding the qualifications of women to act as jurors is delaying the completion of their jury lists for the coming year.

The judges hold frequent meetings, the results of which are not made public, but it is expected that the question of including the names of women with those of men for jury duty in the superior court next year has received much consideration.

It is said also that a committee of judges has been named to decide the question and that a decision will be made early next month, so that the jury list may be completed by January 1, 1912.

The Easiest Way to Remove Fuzz

(Doubtful Secrets.)

No longer is it necessary for women troubled with hair on face or arms to submit to the tortuous electric needle, or experiment with injurious preparations, for it has been found that ordinary powdered talcum, mixed with water to form a paste and spread on the hairy surface, will remove every trace of hair or fuzz.

After leaving the talcum on for two or three minutes, it should be rubbed off and the skin washed. Not only will the hairs vanish, but the skin will be left white, soft and firm. Even though druggists charge a dollar for an original one-ounce package, no one will hesitate an instant to get it, as it is unfailing.

SECRETARIES TO ATTEND BIG GAMEStimson and Meyer Will Root for Army and Navy at Big Football Match.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Meyer will go to Philadelphia next Saturday to watch the army and navy battle for supremacy on the gridiron. Each, of course, will "root" for the eleven of his own service.

If President Taft's cold is improved to such an extent as to allow him to make the trip, he probably will attend the game. As commander-in-chief of both the army and navy, he would have to present strictly a neutral attitude. However, as he was himself formerly Secretary of War, he might secretly lean a little toward the cadets.

If the President attends, he probably will divide his time between the boxes of the two secretaries, according to custom.

NEW SEARCH FOR NEGRO.

MODESTO, Nov. 21.—Having failed in the attempt to connect the negro arrested at Fresno with the brutal assault near this city Friday evening on Miss Harriet Sullivan, a 17-year-old clerk at a local department store, Sheriff Dingley and his deputies and the city police department have continued their systematic search throughout the county and every farmer in the section has been warned to keep a lookout for every suspicious-looking negro. Miss Sullivan is recovering from the mental shock, but is not out of danger.

DEFICIENCIES IN MONETARY SYSTEM TOLD BY ALDRICH

Commission Head Informs Bankers of Efforts to Remedy Evils He Has Found in American Finance

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 21.—Pointing out in detail what he believes are the greatest deficiencies in the United States monetary system, Nelson W. Aldrich, chairman of the National Monetary Commission, today delivered a notable address before the American Bankers' Association in session here.

Aldrich spoke in part as follows: "To the national monetary commission is assigned the important task of devising a plan by which this great country may secure that immunity which for a century has been enjoyed by the people of every other great commercial nation from the disastrous results of monetary panics and acute monetary disturbances.

"If we can devise for the United States a monetary system which will protect the rights and afford security to the bank depositors, which will enable the banks at all times to respond to every legitimate demand for credit and currency so essential for the development of our industries, we shall have met the expectations of the public with reference to two important matters: and have done much to create and maintain that feeling of confidence in the safety and effectiveness of banking institutions which is essential to our uninterrupted national progress.

"There is general agreement among intelligent students of the subject that to accomplish these beneficent results we must provide a better, more efficient credit, through reconstruction of banking systems and methods.

WHERE IT FAILS.

"The failures of our monetary system can be largely attributed:

"1.—To our inability to enforce that effective co-operation of banks which is necessary to protect the public interests as well as their own in times of stress.

"2.—To the limitations and restrictions imposed by antiquated or obsolete laws with reference to the treatment of reserves and.

"3.—To a defective inelastic and unsatisfactory system of note issues.

"I propose to discuss briefly some of the salient features of the plan to remedy these defects and prevent failures, through the organization of a national reserve association.

"It is proposed to organize the banks of the country into local associations and these into district associations, each with distinct functions and each with local self-government and to organize all district associations in the National Reserve Association.

POSITIVE PROVISIONS.

"The plan of organization includes positive provisions:

"1.—To maintain the integrity and independence of existing banks, state and national. The organization is outside of superimposed upon the existing system. The proposed association is not a bank and is not a competitor in any sense for the business of existing banks. In its ownership and in its domestic business it is confined strictly to banks and the government.

"2.—It provides clearly for an equity of privileges and advantages to all banks, great or small, wherever located.

"3.—It provides equality in rates of discount or re-discount to all banks and these rates are to be uniform throughout the country.

"4.—The organization is of a form and character that will effectively prevent the control of its operations by political influences, local or national.

"5.—Every means has been taken, every safeguard adopted to prevent the possibility of control by any corporation or combination of corporations, banks, or otherwise, by any individual or combination of individuals in Wall street or elsewhere for selfish or sinister purposes.

"6.—The organization is of a form and character that will effectively prevent the control of its operations by political influences, local or national.

"7.—It requires the association to facilitate domestic exchanges by transfer of balances from one branch of the association to another.

"8.—It admits state banks and trust companies to membership in the organization under provisions which co-ordinate the conditions of membership of all banks with reference to the character of their reserves and with reference to the character of the dividends to be paid to the stockholders.

"9.—It requires the association to facilitate domestic exchanges by transfer of balances from one branch of the association to another.

"10.—It requires the association to facilitate domestic exchanges by transfer of balances from one branch of the association to another.

"11.—It requires the association to facilitate domestic exchanges by transfer of balances from one branch of the association to another.

AUTO TRADE IS ON THE INCREASE

Oakland Ranks as One of the Important Trade Centers in America.

Oakland is one of the important trade centers of the automobile industry of the United States. This fact is recognized by the largest automobile factories in the country, in their general advertisements found in leading magazines, designating Oakland as among their principal offices and distributing depots.

"Automobile Row" on Twelfth street, where are located most of the automobile agencies, supply houses, repair shops and public garages, is one of the busy sections of Oakland, and its business is growing in proportion to the growth of the whole city.

The annual sales of new automobiles in Oakland for the current year will amount to approximately twelve hundred, or about one hundred new machines every month. This is exclusive of auto trucks, the sales of which are rapidly increasing, and it is estimated that by the first of January nearly one hundred new ones will have been put into commission in this city in the twelve months. The total number of auto trucks in use in Oakland is about one hundred and fifty.

The annual sales of new automobiles in Oakland represent a business of nearly $10,000,000. The sale of accessories, repairs, accessories and repairs will aggregate 25 to 50 per cent of the above, so that the total automobile business done on "Automobile Row" in Oakland can be conservatively put at $30,000,000, including the work of the repair shops.

There are in use in Alameda county today, approximately twelve to fourteen hundred motorcycles. The business brought by dealers in machines, repairs and equipments, when taken into consideration, gives a basis for some estimate of the aggregate of the motor vehicle industry in this city.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Literature of the United States will be taught for the first time in South America at the University of San Marcos, at Lima, Peru, that institution having included it in its curriculum for the ensuing scholastic year, according to a report from Consul General William H. Delicious Gingerbread

(Recipe by Mrs. Mary J. Lincoln)

Children are great lovers of gingerbread, and grown folks, too, if it is rich, "melt-in-your-mouth" kind. Here is something the children can eat freely, without fear of "tummy-ache":

Mix two cups flour, one-half level teaspoon salt, one level teaspoon soda, one level tablespoon ginger, stir in one cup molasses, two tablespoons softened Cottoleone and one-half cup boiling water. Bake in shallow pan. If for dessert, bake in layers. Fill with whipped cream, flavored with lemon.

Cottoleone makes light, rich pastry that digests with ease.

WOMEN CAST VOTES.

CHEHALIS, Wash., Nov. 21.—At its first election under the commission form of government, Dr. J. T. Coleman was chosen mayor over W. C. Green by a vote of 623 to 177. William Brunswig and Edward Degler were chosen commissioners. A large per cent of the votes cast were by women.

A man loves his country because politicians spout about it; a woman because it is the soil of her children.
